Etiquette and Eartha-- A White House Luncheon

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP)—Singer Eartha Kitt, in an emotional White House confrontation with Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, said U.S. youth are rebelling because of the Vietnam war.

Young men don't want to be sent off "to get shot" in a war they don't understand, Miss Kitt told the First Lady at a Thursday luncheon. "So they rebel in the streets and take pot," she added, explaining to Mrs. Johnson: "In case you don't know the expression, that's marijuana."

Miss Kitt earlier confronted President Johnson, who dropped in to greet the 50 women Mrs. Johnson had gathered for a discussion of crime in the streets.

Johnson told the women he hoped they would go home "excited enough to provide some leadership for programs we're trying so hard to develop."

At times Miss Kitt faced Mrs. Johnson directly across the dining table and the scene was electric.

Mrs. Johnson sat through it all, appearing disturbed but maintaining outward control. Finally she rose to regain command of her emotionally shattered luncheon.

She told the Negro singer: "I have not lived the background you have. I cannot speak as passionately or as well, but we must keep our eyes, our hearts and our energies fixed on constructive aims to do something that will make this a happier, healthier, better educated land." The President said it might cut down juvenile delinquency if all parents asked themselves at midnight where their children were.

As the President prepared to depart, Miss Kitt stepped in his path and asked, "What do we do about delinquent parents who have to go to work and can't spend time with their children? What do you do with the children?"

Pausing, Johnson told her quietly the 1967 Social Security Act provided millions of dollars for day-care centers. He said he recognizes the problem and left the women with the suggestion that they "tell me what you think."

Miss Kitt was not among three scheduled speakers at the luncheon. But when the First Lady called for discussion the singer rose and made an impassioned plea on behalf of American youth and their parents, who, she said, couldn't come to talk to the President and his wife.

"One of the speakers talked about walking through the gutters—I lived in the gutters," she said.

She said she didn't intend to offend Mrs. Johnson or the other women, but: "I am here to say what is in my heart."

Youngsters are angry, said Miss Kitt, "because their parents are angry, and their parents are angry because they're so highly taxed and because there is a war going on and we do not understand why."

She said she was a mother and knew "the feeling of a baby coming out of my guts."

"No mother wants to educate her child only to have him snatched away and sent off to Vietnam," she said.

Miss Kitt said youth have the feeling they must enjoy life now because they may not be here tomorrow and believe it doesn't pay to be a "good guy."

"A bad guy gets thrown into jail," she said. "He gets a record and the government takes care of him and they don't send him to Vietnam to get shot up. It pays to be a bad guy."

And that, she said, is where the real cause of juvenile delinquency lies. "They don't want to get sent off to get shot so they rebel in the streets. They take pot and they smoke a joint and they will get just as high as they can."

Mrs. Richard Hughes, wife of the New Jersey governor jumped up to offer rebuttal.

She said her first husband was killed while serving in the Air Force and her eight sons face going to Vietnam but are studying, not smoking marijuana.

"Anyone who takes pot because of the war in Vietnam is some kind of kook," Mrs. Hughes concluded.

Mrs. Johnson added:

"Just because there is a war on—and I pray there will come a just and honest peace—that still does not give us a free ticket not to try to work on bettering things in this country."

Applause broke out as the First Lady concluded:

"Violence will not help. It will call attention to the problem, but violence alone will not solve it."

Shoot Down Three U.S. Phantom Jets

SAIGON (AP) — Two U.S. Phantom jets were downed over North Vietnam Thursday, another Phantom shot down a MIG17 the same day, and still another Phantom was lost Tuesday, the U.S. Command announced today.

Five American fliers were missing and one was rescued, the command said.

The three Phantoms brought to 790 the total number of American war planes announced down in combat over North Vietnam in the bombing campaign, now nearly three years old. The MIG17 was the 10th Communist interceptor claimed by American pilots.

The Red MIG was shot down after a U.S. strike on the Bac Giang thermal power plant 28 miles northeast of Hanoi. Two of the American Phantoms also were downed north of Hanoi, while the U.S. jet lost Tuesday went down in North Vietnam's southern panhandle.

Unknown Causes
The three U.S. losses were due to "unknown causes," the American command said. The pilot who was rescued was flying the plane down Tuesday.

On the ground, meanwhile, U.S. Marines with a big assist from artillery and helicopter gunships nearly wiped out an outnumbered force of some 200 North Vietnamese Thursday in a six-hour battle just south of the demilitarized zone.

U.S. officials see massing of Red troops in buffer zone as indication Communists have no intention of scaling down war. This view and the survey results showing members of Congress that Vietnam ranks as No. 1 issue with voters back home may be found on Page 22.

Many of the 162 North Vietnamese regulars reported killed were apparently victims of the big American guns and helicopters that pounded the hemmedin Communists as they tried to break out.

Eight Marines were reported killed and 39 wounded. Some apparently were hit by Red artillery fire from caves and gunpits inside the DMZ.

It was the first heavy fighting in nearly a week along South Vietnam's northern frontier, where the Marine command expects the North Vietnamese to launch another big push before the start Jan. 27 of the one-week cease-fire promised by the Viet Cong for Tet, the Vietnamese lunar New Year.

Suspended From Job

Health Official Admits to LSD Hoax

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A Pennsylvania health official's "concern over the illegal use of LSD by children" apparently motivated him to invent a story that six Pennsylvania college students were blinded by the sun after taking the drug, Gov. Raymond P. Shafer says.

Shafer said Thursday he could offer no other reason why Dr. Norman Yoder, 53, state commissioner for the blind since 1959, fabricated the story.

Yoder, suspended from his job by Shafer, collapsed after revealing the hoax, a state official said, and was sent to a psychiatric hospital in Philadelphia.

The governor revealed the hoax to a news conference just a day after telling reporters he was convinced the incident occurred, based on information from Yoder's superior, Public Welfare Secretary Thomas W. Georges Jr.

Shafer said Yoder, legally blind since he was accidentally hit with a baseball bat 45 years ago, admitted the fabrication to Atty. Gen. William C. Sennett and Robert West, a Justice Department investigator.

The story was first disclosed Jan. 12 in an Associated Press dispatch from Washington. It quoted Yoder as reporting the story originally in a letter to a U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare official last November. The AP obtained the letter, then contacted Yoder.

Yoder claimed the youths took the hallucinatory drug together some 18 months ago, then lay down in a grassy area near their college and stared, unblinking, at the sun. Yoder, an expert in rehabilitation of the blind, claimed the retinas of their eyes were destroyed.

The story touched off a widespread search by newsmen for identity of the students. Yoder had refused to identify the college or name the students, but said all had resumed academic studies at different schools.

State officials, including Georges, backed his story, as did Joseph Hunt, U.S. commissioner of rehabilitation services. Hunt said in Washington there was never any reason to doubt Yoder's word, that he was always "very careful and cautious in what he said."

Georges also noted Yoder's concern over LSD.

"He told me that he had attended a conference last summer where he heard a research ophthalmologist talk on the effects of LSD on the eye," Georges said. "He said he became very much concerned about the large number of youngsters exposed to LSD and felt there must be something he could do as an individual to emphasize the need for more programs to control it."

Taylor Street Definitely in UR Makeup

By LYNN MULVANEY

Uptown Urban Renewal is going to take Taylor Street—with no ifs, ands or buts about it.

At a press conference this morning, Scott Alexander, Urban Renewal Agency chairman stated unequivocally that both Murphy and Taylor Streets would be acquired. Explaining that the plans have been reviewed and gone over many times, he said "nothing is changed" in spite of past controversy.

Some residents of the area and their alderman John Machione raised objections to such acquisition.

Alexander, in reviewing both the uptown and downtown renewal projects reported:

1. Road work and other site improvements will be started downtown this summer and uptown in the fall.

2. The agency's engineering consultants have been instructed to draw detailed specifications for the uptown parking garage to be located on the site of the old Montgomery

Ward store on N. Front Street, stretching in the rear to the Plaza Road.

3. An elevator at the rear of the parking facility will bring pedestrians from the plaza street level on N. Front.

5. Downtown Maple Street will be improved this summer as will Chambers Street in order to permit better traffic flow until the 9W Arterial is completed at which time Chambers Street will be abandoned. Plans also call for widening Meadow Street and realigning Murray Street.

Ward Tongue, acting urban renewal executive director and Alexander revealed further that no demolition would take place uptown until there is strong indication that new construction is imminent. In that way they hope to keep as many properties on the tax rolls as possible.

The agency's planners, Raymond and May Associates are presently creating a theme for the uptown retail store area and as soon as completed, store owners may apply for loans to facilitate uniform design in store fronts.

When asked if the agency, which has been operating under the guidance of an acting director has been successful in locating a director to replace Eric Hemphill who resigned last year, Alexander said that the agency has had only one application to date. He also expressed the view "we may not hire anyone." Referring to the recent addition of a New York City attorney, Henry Halpern, who specializes in disposition parcels, to the agency's list of consultants, Alexander said, such aid from someone skilled in development, added to the talents and intimate local knowledge of the present acting director, Tongue, may be sufficient.

Until July 1

Matthews Asks Sales Tax Delay

S. James Matthews, president of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, today released a copy of a letter which he sent to the 13 members of the Common Council. In his message to the Kingston aldermen, Matthews requested that the recently passed city 2 per cent retail sales tax, due to go into effect on April 1, be postponed until July 1.

The Chamber president cited the fact that at the time Mayor Garraghan proposed the retail levy, he indicated that the state sales tax was going to be increased and that it would be to the best interest of Kingston to pass a sales tax first. The governor's budget unveiled this week, does not call for a sales tax increase but rather, looks for additional levies on personal income, businesses, alcohol and pari-mutuel betting.

Matthews in his letter to the aldermen, pointed to the fact that Rockefeller's budget provides for a reduction of Medicaid, a heavy outlay for local government and for the return to localities of all sums realized from the tax increases. The Chamber head also indicated that in view of these extra funds being returned to the local area and the reduction of Medicaid costs, that it seemed unlikely that the County Legislature would now enact a sales tax. "The detrimental effect of a retail levy solely on those businesses located within the city limits could have serious consequences," it was said.

In asking for the three month's delay, the Chamber president pointed out that a fuller assessment of the local and tax picture could be made after the passage of the state budget.

For Sheriff

Mayone to Seek GOP Nomination

A prominent Ulster County law enforcement officer, Thomas F. Mayone, special investigator for the District Attorney's Office is expected to announce Saturday night that he will seek the Republican nomination for county sheriff.

Although it has not been announced, it is assumed that Ulster County's Democratic Sheriff William B. Martin will again seek the nomination of his party for the post.

Hekler Named Ulster County Plans Director

Benjamin L. Webster, chairman of the Ulster County Planning Board, has announced the appointment of Herbert M. Hekler as Ulster County planning director. Hekler will assume his duties Monday.

Hekler has been an associate planning consultant with the firm of P. Clark and Associates since 1964. Locally, he has participated in planning programs for the Towns of Lloyd (Highland), Fishkill and Wappingers Falls. He has also worked for the Villages of Bayville and Northport on Long Island and the Towns of New Castle (Chappaqua), Bedford and Pound Ridge in Westchester County.

He holds a Bachelors' Degree in Economics from Queens College, and a Masters' Degree in City Planning from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He has had either a fellowship or a scholarship throughout his MIT career. He was awarded a Fulbright Fellowship in '62-'63 for graduate planning study at the Technical University in Hanover, West Germany, after which he received a certificate in city planning from the Fulbright Commission.

Hekler has worked on planning projects funded by grants from the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development under the section 701 program. These have included land use surveys, mapping, studies of school needs, roads, recreation and other public facilities, land use planning including economic development, and a special study on the ample industry in the Town of Lloyd.

In 1965 Hekler was admitted as an Associate Member of the American Institute of Planners, of which David Loeks, president of Mid-Hudson Pattern for Progress, was recently president. He is also a member of the American Society of Planning Officials.

When asked why he was interested in Ulster County, Hekler replied: "I wish to serve my second home." His family for many years owned a summer home on the Vly Road in Stone Ridge. He has been a constant visitor there for over 20 years for he is an enthusiastic hunter, fisherman, skier, and antique buff.

Mayone's announcement, the Freeman learned, will be made at the installation of Saugerties Republican Club officers Saturday 8 p. m. at the Flamingo Restaurant.

Mayone, a resident of Saugerties, has served the past two years with the District Attorney's Office. Prior to that he served four years as county investigator in the Sheriff's Office and 12 years as deputy sheriff.

During the past four years he has been conducting educational programs throughout the county on the evils of drug abuse and the narcotic problem. The programs were presented at schools, civic and social clubs and parent-teacher organizations.

He graduated from Saugerties High School, Federal Narcotic School, Federal Drug Abuse School, and Federal Bureau of Investigation sponsored in-training schools on all phases of police work, including investigation, photography, fingerprinting, search and seizure, and laws of arrest and self defense.

A veteran of World War II, Mayone served in the South Pacific attached to the 11th Airborne Division and received an honorable discharge after two years of service with the rank of sergeant.

Membership in organizations includes International Narcotic Enforcement Officers Association; National Sheriff's Association; International Association of Identification; Lamourie

Hackett Post 72, American Legion; Rifton Parents Youth Organization; Town of Saugerties Republican Club, and Town of Saugerties Republican Committee.

Mayone, 42, is a native of Glasco and son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mayone of Barclay Heights. He is married to the former Caroline Reissler of Wappingers Falls and they have three children.

Mayone's name was presented in a surprise move on the floor of the unofficial GOP convention several years ago but he withdrew in favor of William A. Krum, who was later defeated by Martin.

Highland Bank Will Join Big Holding Co.

The Franklin National Bank of Mineola, L. I., and three mid-Hudson area banks announced jointly today a proposal for a $2.7 billion New York State bank holding company.

The proposed holding company, to be known as the Franklin New York Corporation, would embrace 94 offices in New York City and Nassau, Suffolk, Rockland, Ulster, Orange and Sullivan counties.

The First National Bank of Highland will be one of the area banks involved along with the Tappan Zee National Bank, Nyack, and The Sullivan County National Bank, Liberty.

The holding company would be organized through the exchange of shares of the individual institutions. The action proposed by the four banks' boards of directors is subject to approval of the shareholders and supervising authorities.

Howard D. Crosse, vice chairman of Franklin, would serve as president of the holding company which would be headquartered in New York City.

In their joint announcement, the banks' chief executives said that the proposed holding company would give the mid-Hudson area institutions "the benefit of Franklin's long experience in consumer banking and industrial development, as well as its money market and international banking facilities, to serve the rapidly growing areas north of New York City."

Joseph Aliano, president of The First National Bank of Highland, pointed out that the Franklin National Bank was founded in an area on Long Island economically similar to the area presently served by The First National Bank of Highland. The aggressiveness of the Franklin National Bank is evidence by its tremendous growth from a one office bank to a 79 office bank, serving Long Island and New York City.

The establishment of this holding company will add to the ability of The First National Bank of Highland to more adequately serve the needs of the farmers, commercial and industrial firms and area residents. The First National Bank of Highland will gain an additional depth of experience as well as a greater loaning capacity through the new association.

Proposes New Laws To Protect Licenses

By WALTER S. CLARK JR. County or state legislation designed to curb drinking of alcoholic beverages by teen-agers and to protect owners of licensed establishments against possible violations of the ABC laws, was proposed Thursday afternoon by Sheriff William B. Martin.

The sheriff was guest speaker at a special meeting of the Ulster County Hotel and Restaurant Liquor Dealers Association at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Noting that ID cards presently issued by authorities had been duplicated and violated on numerous occasions by youths not entitled to them because of age, the sheriff said a new type of cards that cannot be duplicated or misused are being prepared and will soon be distributed.

Martin said that recent surveys disclosed that youths 15, 16 and 17 had been drinking and later in fatal accidents or minor crimes. Investigations have revealed that a majority of complaints made to authorities by parents that their children under 18 years had been served intoxicating beverages at certain places, were unfounded. Martin said that in about 90 percent of those cases it was learned the younger boys—or girls—had been served the drinks by 18-year-olds unknown to the bartender or proprietor of a licensed place.

Good Disguises
The sheriff explained that with wigs and long hair worn by youth today makes it almost impossible for one to tell whether it is a boy or girl, and the disguises make it difficult for employees in licensed establishments.

Martin suggested that members of the association give thorough consideration to a proposal for legislation which would prohibit youths under 18 years of age from going into licensed places or congregating in them unless accompanied by a parent or guardian or unless they do so with the consent of their parents.

The speaker pointed out that if the ABC laws are changed, or if a new state or county law is enacted relating to age limits for patrons of licensed places, any youth under 18 could be kept out of taverns or restaurants with licenses and possible violations of the ABC laws could be averted.

"Such legislation," Martin said, "would help to protect the child and the licensee." Martin said that 18-year-olds frequently go to licensed places with youths of 15, 16 or 17, and while there, the older youth gives a drink to a younger boy while the attention of the bartender is centered elsewhere. He also cited cases where boys or girls of younger ages go to certain places with a bottle of wine concealed in a pocketbook and drink the intoxicants in a restroom or secluded corner of the establishment.

The speaker also told of cases that have come to the attention of police agencies where 18-year-olds induce younger boys to commit minor crimes to obtain money to buy more drinks after the funds of the older boy runs out.

Some Suggestions
A question and answer period brought several suggestions and some opposition to the proposed legislation from some members. A heavy fine for the parent of a youth who produces a phony ID card or otherwise obtains drinks under other false means, was proposed by some association members. It was brought out during discussion that owners of some taverns or restaurants in outlying sections where no form of recreation is available are patronized by young boys and girls who stop in for soft drinks and sandwiches and never get so-called hard drinks.

The association president, Whalen, said after the meeting that Martin's proposal will be discussed at the February meeting and action might be taken at that time. Lottie Cashara, outgoing president, opened yesterday's meeting and introduced new officers.

No Cause Verdict
A no cause for action verdict was delivered Wednesday by a jury in trial term of Supreme Court before Supreme Court Justice Louis G. Bruhn in the case of Thomas C. Thompson and another against Ellenville Central School Board of Education. Thompson was suing for injuries sustained by his son, Thomas, who was nine years old at the time the boy broke his arm in a fall from the school gymnasium bleachers on Oct. 6, 1959. Arthur B. Ewig appeared for Thompson, the plaintiff, and Francis Tucker for the school board.

Bids Opened
Low bids totaling $633,835 on 17 projects for construction, repairs and alterations to state owned facilities were opened in commissioner of General Services, Albany Wednesday. According to C.V.B. Schuyler, commissioner of General Services, Ulster County received one work project for food equipment service at the Highland Training School. Two bids were submitted with the Lewis Equipment Co. of Albany submitting the lowest figure of $23,925.

Guatemala Police Chief Says Plot Hatched by Havana at '67 Parley

GUATEMALA (AP) — Did the shadow of Fidel Castro lurk behind the machine-gun slaying this week of the chief of the U.S. military mission here and a naval attaché?

Guatemala's police chief Col. Manuel Sosa Avila, himself the target of an unsuccessful assassination attempt during the current terror wave, says yes.

He claims the plot was hatched at last year's meeting of the leftist Latin American Solidarity Organization (OLAS) conference, hosted by Prime Minister Castro in Havana.

Yet the Communist-type terrorist slayings occurred as Cesar Montes, chief of the Rebel Armed Forces—FAR—was reported veering from Castro's export-revolution line to Moscow's softer talk-politics policy.

Havana Radio reported after last year's conference that the Guatemalan OLAS delegation including Montes went from Havana to Moscow for orientation. Outside Communist circles, there is no indication of anti-U.S. sentiment in Guatemala.

"We are all equal" was the way a taxi driver summed it up, "Guatemalans, Americans, Mexicans, we are all friends."

A U. S. government spokesman said, "The tremendous reaction that followed the killing of the Americans attests to the fact that the Guatemalan people were shocked and sad."

The military mission has been here since 1956, invited by the Guatemalan government. The functions of the 34-member mission are to extend advisory, training and supply help to the Guatemalan Defense Department.

"There is nothing unusual about the operation," said an embassy spokesman. "There are similar missions in various Latin American countries."

So why were Col. John D.

Webber and Lt. Cmdr. Ernesto Munro singled out for death during the height of an urban guerrilla campaign that has followed the flushing out of leftist guerrillas from Guatemala's mountains?

One informed source suggested FAR may have slain the Americans "to get into the lime-light again and put pressure on Castro to extend more help."

Another theory advanced was that FAR and other Communist elements wanted a common cause to heal damaging factional splits.

Mountain guerrilla activity in Guatemala has been virtually snuffed out by government forces, with the resultant urban terrorism. No figures are available on the number of persons killed, but it is generally estimated that hundreds have died from bullets the past year.

A communique signed by FAR said that organization killed the two Americans because the U.S. military mission was helping Guatemala in pursuing guerrillas.

Further links between FAR and the slayings occurred the following day. Leonardo Castillo Johnson, 30, son of a well known Communist now dead, was shot by guards during an attempt to assassinate the police chief. The government described Castillo as a key FAR figure. A recent FAR communique said the same.

Funeral Will Be Monday For Former Mayor Carey

The funeral of former mayor Eugene B. Carey, 76, of 143 Harding Avenue, who died Thursday at Benedictine Hospital, will be held Monday at 9:30 a. m. from the Jensen and Deegan Funeral Home, 15 Downs Street.

A high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul at 10 a. m. at St. Joseph's Church. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home Saturday and Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p. m.

Lifelong Resident

Former Mayor Carey, who also was a well-known insurance agent of the area, was born in Ponckhockie the son of the late Michael B. and Jane Edwards Carey and was a lifelong resident of this city.

Mr. Carey was connected with the insurance business for more than 50 years. He had entered into a partnership with the late Parker K. Brinnier in 1919 to carry on a general insurance and real estate business. The partnership continued until the death of Brinnier in 1929, at which time Mr. Carey purchased the interest of his late partner and conducted the agency under the name of Carey's Insurance Agency.

Active Civically

Besides carrying on the duties of his business he had always been actively interested in the civic, fraternal and industrial life of the city. For the period from 1924 to 1927, inclusive, he held the following positions, all at the same time:

Adjutant of Kingston Post 150, American Legion; secretary of John N. Cordts Hose Company; comptroller of Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus; president of the Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's Church; director in Ulster County of State-Relief for sick and indigent veterans of World War I; secretary to the Local Zoning Commission and clerk of the late James Jenkins, then city corporation council. He has had a very distinguished record of service to the public and especially veterans.

A veteran of World War I, Mr. Carey had a long varied experience with the work of American Legion, in 1919, and continued in that capacity for eight years. He had also served as past commander of the Post.

Elected Mayor in 1931

In 1931 he was elected mayor of the city, serving a two-year term, during one of the most hectic times of its history which found many men without employment.

Interested in firemanic affairs, he was an active member of John N. Cordts Hose Company No. 8 since 1911 and was honored at a dinner in 1961 in recognition of his 50 years of service.

For many years he was a member of Ulster County Committee of the State Charities Aid Society, serving as president and secretary. In 1949 he acted as chairman for the Ulster County Committee of American Cancer Society.

Was Chamber Director

He had been a member of the Rondout Yacht Club since 1920; served as a director of Kingston Chamber of Commerce from 1949-51; member of Kingston City Democratic Men's Club.

Mr. Carey is survived by his wife, the former Katharine Diamond; a daughter, Mrs. James (Sheila) Matteo of Kingston; a sister, Miss Theresa Carey; a brother, Vincent P. Carey; four grandchildren, Eugene, James, Thomas and Mark Matteo; a niece, Miss Mary Melville.

The C-M Airport Squabble Goes On

By RAY TYSON

The squabble over Channel Master's construction of an airport continued last night when Wawarsing's Town Board met in Ellenville.

A handful of irate citizens appeared before the board and again listed what they termed "safety factors" as the reason motivating their objection to the airport. The group called for the formation of a committee to investigate a possible alternative site.

Attorney Robert V. Stapleton, said the board should consider undertaking construction of a municipal airport as a solution for all parties concerned. He said that federal, state and private funds would be available, thus making a minimum expense to taxpayers.

Channel Master began construction of an airport Sept. 12 that is slated for completion this spring. Plans call for 30 operations monthly with the use of two planes—one single engine craft and one multi-engine plane. Objections have been based on the runway's proximity to the Ellenville Central School and the Ellenville Community Hospital.

Last month Harry Resnick, president of the electronics firm building the airport, indicated a willingness to halt construction if a municipal airport could be constructed at an alternate site. Resnick said he would even donate funds for such a project.

Councilman Frank Greco declared he would introduce an ordinance prohibiting construction of any additional airports without the Town Board's consent. He stated his legislation would also prohibit enlargement of any present airports.

Concern generated over the Channel Master airport is that the company has unlimited power over its use.

The citizens said they would seek to form a committee composed of representatives from the Village of Ellenville, the Town of Wawarsing, and the School Board as well as the Channel Master Co. to find a solution to the problem.

Vital Decisions

Elsewhere on this page, David Lawrence points out that Great Britain's withdrawal as a major military or naval force in the preservation of peace throughout the world has caused consternation in this country. The United States now is left with the main burden of protecting small as well as large nations which may be threatened by Communist imperialism.

It should be clear to the Johnson Administration that the United States cannot further overextend itself all around the world without weakening the financial structure of this nation to a disastrous degree and reducing the adequacy of our military might.

With this in mind, there should be a reappraisal of our commitments in Asia and in Europe and a definite understanding of the responsibilities of our allies. Some realignment is going to be necessary if American power is to be made available to help other countries. The United States cannot do the job alone.

Is there not a lesson for the United States in the case of the once powerful Great Britain? Isn't there a familiar pattern of foreign obligations and entanglements and in deficits and inflation on the home front?

Lawrence sees grave risks to the economic future of the United States if there is a continuation of our present spending all over the world.

These are vital matters that require well-considered decisions by our policymakers, even in an election year.

Christian Unity

A Unity Prayer Service will be held Sunday evening at 8 at St. Mary's Church, this city, at which time clergy and laity of all local Christian churches will participate. The common bonds of unity among Christians will be stressed and pastors of the various churches will officiate.

Throughout the country during Christian Unity Week, which continues to January 25, ecumenical services in which Protestants, Orthodox and Roman Catholics will occupy pulpits in the others' churches will be featured.

For instance, the final service of the week of prayer will see the Suffragan Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of New York, the Rt. Rev. James Stuart Wetmore, preaching in the pulpit of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Cathedral. It will be the first time in the history of St. Patrick's that a Protestant clergyman has preached there.

Similarly, Msgr. Austin Vaughan of St. Joseph's Seminary at Dunwoodie, N. Y., a Roman Catholic institution, will preach at a service at St. Thomas Episcopal Church, New York. And interfaith service will be held in the Greek Orthodox Cathedral, with ecumenical messages given by Roman Catholic, Protestant and Orthodox clergy.

This is the 60th anniversary of the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity, founded by the Graymoor Friars in 1908. The nationwide services are sponsored jointly by the National Council and World Council of Churches (Protestant and Eastern Orthodox), the Bishops' Commission for Ecumenical and Interreligious Affairs (Roman Catholic) and the Graymoor Friars. They are a decisive sign of the progress toward unity in the last 60 years.

The 'Free' Nations

Commentators and columnists are all too prone to divide the world into just two neat packages—the free and the Communist-dominated. This labelling practice is a case of over-simplification at its worst.

Free—"free" from what and "free" to what? The Greek military junta got out the blue pencil and expunged from a letter from exiled Greek King Constantine one sentence in which he extolled the merits of democracy. The mass of Greeks never read their King's full statement. This, in the very seat of democracy, in a nation that, thanks to Marshall Plan aid, the Communist conspiracy was beaten down two decades ago.

Take Spain. Generalissimo Franco is kicking up again. Despite a law virtually abolishing censorship night onto two years ago, a new "Official Secrets Law" has been sent to the Cortes (Parliament); it calls for a ban on news about deliberations of either the Council of Ministers or the Council of the Realm—no stories allowed on subjects of national defense, public order, or of affairs of a political, diplomatic, scientific, financial or technical nature. The Barcelona Journalists Association, as well as some newspapers, has condemned the measure, branding it as dooming the right of citizens "not to be governed in secret." Since 1951, when the Cortes was reconstituted, it has never turned down a bill proposed by the Cabinet, and isn't expected to turn down this one.

Spain is "free"?

The International Press Institute recently noted that prior to the brief May-June war between Israel and the Arabs, the press in those countries had degenerated into mere instruments of war propaganda. Haiti was cited as a journalistic "black spot."

We're all a little too free with the use of the word "free." The unhappy fact is that freedom is not quite so abundant in some of the non-Communist nations as we'd like to believe.

Pogo Polls

David Lawrence Says

How Will New British Policy Affect U.S.

WASHINGTON — Great Britain's pull-out as a major military or naval force in the preservation of peace throughout the world has caused consternation here because it means that the United States is left with the main burden of protecting small as well as large nations which may be threatened by Communist imperialism.

Perhaps the biggest single factor contributing to the British decision is the expense of maintaining up-to-date equipment even for conventional wars while nuclear strength is today the only preventive of a world war.

Many nations—like Great Britain—are beginning to feel more-over, that, as long as the United States and the Soviet Union maintain a stalemate, there is no real need for building up their own armament and that local uprisings of a serious nature can be left either to the United States or to the United Nations to police.

Maybe the men who formulate British foreign policy would have been willing to help defend the Middle East and Southeast Asia, but economic weakness has dictated another course. The United States is up against grave risks to its own economic future if there is a continuation of its present spending all over the world. Yet the policymakers of the American government have come to believe that they have no other choice. Either Southeast Asia, for instance, has to be defended and a watchful eye kept on the Middle East or else the Soviets would move in and take over.

The key to world peace, therefore, is in Moscow. If up the smaller countries became unnecessary, Red China by itself would not be a threat to peace.

The British action in withdrawing from Asia, despite commitments in SEATO and to the commonwealth countries of the area, is accompanied by the prospect of a British navy without aircraft carriers and a Royal Air Force without effective air power. Will the Russians now take advantage of this change to start trouble on the borders of West Germany? Will Moscow encourage Nasser to start a new war with Israel? Will the United States, if it stops bombing North Vietnam, find itself frustrated by a Communist takeover of South Vietnam? These are questions that make the effects of the new British policy more difficult to foresee.

Hence, the United States may have to begin an "agonizing reappraisal" of its position in Europe as well as Asia. This requires a re-examination of the structure of the United Nations itself. For a new alliance would have to be formed from those large and small nations of the world which may wish to ally themselves with the United States to protect their independence against Communist aggression. The Russians and the United States were to come to an agreement, so that future military operations to back them. Some realignment is going to be necessary on the part of many countries if American power is to be made available to help defend them. Certainly the job cannot be done by the United States alone.

The only ray of hope could come from the Soviet Union. It has been having plenty of internal troubles in recent months, and the economic pressure for a better life within its borders is analogous to the economic problems that have caused Great Britain to diminish its military force outside its own territory. Armament is rising to a prohibitive level of cost.

The big question before the major powers of the world is whether they are going to spend a large proportion of their money for military purposes or for improvement of the living conditions of their respective populations. What is needed, most of all, is not only a limitation of armament expenditures but a repression of imperialistic ambitions both in the Soviet Union and Red China which have threatened the peace of every continent.

It certainly is time for negotiations with Moscow and Peking to achieve a real truce in the world. If a truce were attained, the Vietnam War as well as other local conflicts would be automatically extinguished along with the threats of war.

fore President Johnson arrived in Wichita, Kansas. Mr. Blackmon, a former Wichita State University student, is charged with saying: "I am going to get a gun and kill the son of a bitch." Kid talk? Silly? He was arraigned in District Court.

In the same city, William Rothering Jr. was picked up breaking into a gun shop. Police asked him what he was doing. Rothering said he was going to take a gun and shoot President Johnson because he believed that Johnson was implicated in the assassination of President Kennedy.

In the case of a threat by an insane person, should the government forgive and forget? Not as long as the nut can hold and aim a rifle. In Washington, D. C., 200 mentally ill persons are picked up each year near government buildings and sent to St. Elizabeth's Hospital for treatment.

The Secret Service felt humiliated when it lost Kennedy in Dallas. It doesn't plan to overlook anybody who might be dangerous to the person of the President. Of course, if November 22, 1963, was to be reenacted tomorrow with the same assortment of knowledge, Kennedy would be shot again. In my opinion, no one but God could have stopped that one.

All of us have heard threats of one kind or another. The majority turn out to be nothing more than words. If only one in each thousand is serious, then all must be taken in deadly earnest.

Unhappily, there is no other way . . .

Rep. Rivers Makes Enforced Change of Junket Plans

WASHINGTON—This column apparently upset the pleasant plans of Lucius Mendel Rivers, the bourbon-and-branch-water Congressman from Charleston, S. C., to take a last fling at the taxpayers' expense before settling down to another session of Congress.

He had made arrangements to spend a week in Puerto Rico, beginning Jan. 15, basking in the sun by day and the neon lights by night, while his colleagues gathered on the icy slopes of Capitol Hill. To pay his bills and cater to his whims, the Army assigned his favorite military nursemaid, Warrant Officer Diego Randazzo, to accompany him.

With all the mystery of a spy caper, Randazzo was issued special orders to drop his regular duties at Fort Benning, Ga., and proceed to Puerto Rico in civilian clothes. He was authorized to draw $3,800 in Class A funds—petty cash—which the Army keeps on hand for special contingencies. The taxpayers, of course, never intended that it be used to pick up Rivers' bourbon bills in San Juan. Obviously the Army did.

Randazzo's hush-hush orders had scarcely arrived from the Pentagon when we broke the story of his last junket with Rivers. Just before Christmas, they hit the high spots in Europe. We reported that Randazzo had gripped to buddies about Rivers' all-night binges.

We also told how the Army had snatched Randazzo away from the Air Force after learning that he had won Rivers' favor on an Italian junket a couple of years ago. The Army was eager to get on cozier terms with Rivers who, as House Armed Services Chairman, wields enormous power over the armed forces.

The Air Force had gained the inside track with Rivers by furnishing him with jet air transportation anywhere in the world and by naming the airfield outside Charleston in his honor.

The Navy had earned his gratitude by whisking him discreetly to Bethesda Naval Hospital to dry out after his alcoholic binges. The Navy also named a Charleston housing development for service families Men-Riv Park, an abbreviation which, of course, stands for Mendel Rivers.

All three services have loaded his backwater district with so many military facilities that the sheer weight threatens to tip that end of South Carolina into the sea. But the Army had always rated third in Rivers' favor. Thus the Army generals, upon learning how Randazzo had pleased Rivers, quietly offered him a better deal in the Army. That's how Randazzo, and Air Force sergeant, happened to transfer into the Army as a warrant officer.

He is now assigned to Company A, 197th Support Battalion, at Fort Benning, Ga.—far enough from the Pentagon not to get in the way of inquiring reporters. Messages for him are accepted, however, at the Army legislative liaison office in the Pentagon. And he is available any time Rivers wants someone to carry his bags and pay his bills on a trip.

When we wrote about Randazzo's secret assignment as Rivers' nursemaid, someone in the Pentagon frantically phoned Fort Benning and instructed that his latest orders to Puerto Rico be torn up. All references to his trips with Rivers were also removed from his personnel file.

After insiders tipped us off what had happened, we tried to question Randazzo about the sudden cancellation of his Puerto Rican trip.

"I don't know anything about it. You'll have to talk to the DA," he said, referring to the "Department of the Army."

Next we got hold of his superior at Fort Benning, Lt. Angelo Agrafiotis.

"I know nothing of this," he said, explaining he had been on leave at the time.

We asked what Randazzo did in the Army.

"I am not at liberty to say," replied the lieutenant.

Next, we reached the Army's legislative liaison office at the Pentagon. We were told that Col. Roger Currier was in charge of Randazzo. When the colonel learned who was inquiring, however, he refused to talk. He passed on a message for us to call Brig. Gen. Wendell Coats, the Army's press spokesman.

Coats was not at all happy to hear from us. We asked who had authorized Randazzo to spend $3,800 on Rivers and who had cancelled the orders after our column appeared.

He called back later with the Army's official answer.

"It is a matter of standing practice and policy," he said, "that we refer questions of this sort to the chairman of the committee."

In other words, we would have to ask Chairman Rivers about his own misuse of the taxpayers' money.

Coats explained this was merely a matter of Congressional courtesy. We suggested it might better be described as Congressional cover-up.

The general then added that an authorization to draw Class A funds didn't mean the recipient was supposed to spend all the money. In any case, he would be required to give a detailed accounting of how the money was spent, Coats said.

"Do you mean," we asked, "that Randazzo actually reports how much he spends on liquor for Rivers?"

"He would be required to give a dollar by dollar accounting," said Coats.

If there is any such breakdown in the Pentagon on the Class A money that has been spent on Rivers, however, the taxpayers can be sure it is filed with the Defense Department's most sensitive secrets.

Democrats Jittery as LBJ Hedges on Vital Leadership

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Lyndon Johnson evidently wants to go on holding the White House for another four years without ever learning what crucial northern Democratic politics is all about.

The odd thing is that public opinion polls ranging from against various 1968 Republican prospects suggest that under most circumstances he just might get away with it.

Much is being made of the evidence that Johnson's 1968 Democratic rival, Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, is not yet building an effective campaign in such key primary states as New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Wisconsin and California.

Less appreciated but perhaps more striking is the evidence that Johnson may triumph in these and other places not because he is gearing up properly for a fight but in spite of the fact that he is doing nothing on the party political front.

Key organization Democrats are complaining privately that they are stunned at the President's massive inactivity.

"I just can't understand it," says one. "The indications are he could win big in a lot of these places if he would just move."

Even as it is, Johnson may score a good smash in New Hampshire over McCarthy through a write-in mounted by competent regular organization Democrats. He may do surprisingly well in Massachusetts and Wisconsin, according to fresh private sources.

But the big moves from the White House are not there. Judging from puzzled comment from top regulars, the real activity emanating from that source could be contained in a thimble.

Though quite properly it is being documented with fresh evidence, the story of the Democratic National Committee's futility and ineptitude is a long-standing tale.

As suggested by some major party sources, the key point is not that the President simply is stubbornly resistant to the obvious need for improvement of the party machinery from the top down.

The point is rather that he would not know what to do about it if he wanted to. This, in the view of some, is the operative thing.

He does not act to fix up the national committee and provide guidance in key states, it is said, because he fears to act. He knows, from painful experience gained in 1960 and thereafter, what he does not know.

Applicable today with perhaps greater force than ever is the comment a leading

Democrat made to this reporter many months ago:

"The President has not only failed to master northern big city politics, but I believe he knows it, and has given up trying."

It is generally accepted that his appointments secretary, W. Marvin Watson of Texas, acts for him in one degree or another on political matters. But, competent executive aide though he may be, it is a misreading of Watson to portray him, so key sources say, as any kind of general political expert.

Watson's knowledge and experience in national politics is severely limited. In his political role, indeed, it is suggested by certain political figures that he is merely an appendage, not a large moving force. Since the President is the true agent and does not want to move, Watson's moves are generally small and not gratifyingly significant.

In inevitable consequence, the national committee is just a large inactive appendage and the whole party atrophies at its critical top levels.

It may be some sort of miracle if Lydon Johnson gets reelected while sitting but not presiding over the moribund party structure and holding fast to his fears and suspicions of both the men and the processes by which presidents are elected.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—A House Subcommittee is planning to make a far-ranging investigation of U. S. aid to Latin America.

Moss is chairman of the House Foreign Operations and government information subcommittee whose report last year on U. S. aid in Vietnam was regarded as a landmark in congressional investigations.

The Alliance for Progress is part of the subcommittee's inquiry area. James Fowler, deputy alliance co-ordinator, is tentatively scheduled as the first witness here.

Field investigators have been gathering preliminary material concerning the aid programs in six nations: Brazil, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Argentina and Trinidad.

Brazil is the third largest recipient in the world of U. S. aid—after Vietnam and India—and is expected to get the most attention from the Moss subcommittee.

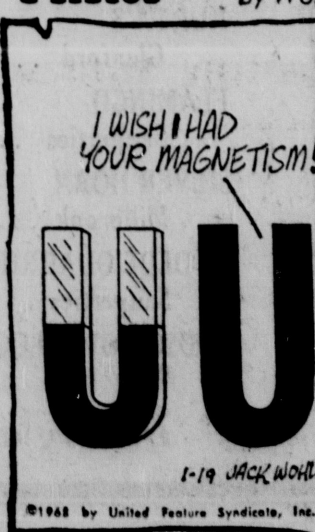

In the fiscal year ending last June 30, Brazil got $214,000,000 of the total $569,000,000 alliance funds committed.

Including the alliance funds, U. S. economic aid to Latin America totaled $1.39 billion in the last fiscal year. Other channels included the export-import bank, $492,000,000 food for freedom, $70,000, 000; the social progress trust fund administered by the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB), $2,000,000 and $274,000,000 from "other sources" including the Peace Corps, grants for the Inter-American Highway, and allocations for the IDB's fund for special operations.

Any hearings held abroad will involve only U. S. personnel. The subcommittee has no authority to summon foreign nationals as witnesses.

Vital Decisions

Elsewhere on this page, David Lawrence points out that Great Britain's withdrawal as a major military or naval force in the preservation of peace throughout the world has caused consternation in this country. The United States now is left with the main burden of protecting small as well as large nations which may be threatened by Communist imperialism.

It should be clear to the Johnson Administration that the United States cannot further overextend itself all around the world without weakening the financial structure of this nation to a disastrous degree and reducing the adequacy of our military might.

With this in mind, there should be a reappraisal of our commitments in Asia and in Europe and a definite understanding of the responsibilities of our allies. Some realignment is going to be necessary if American power is to be made available to help other countries. The United States cannot do the job alone.

Is there not a lesson for the United States in the case of the once powerful Great Britain? Isn't there a familiar pattern of foreign obligations and entanglements and in deficits and inflation on the home front?

Lawrence sees grave risks to the economic future of the United States if there is a continuation of our present spending all over the world.

These are vital matters that require well-considered decisions by our policymakers, even in an election year.

Christian Unity

A Unity Prayer Service will be held Sunday evening at 8 at St. Mary's Church, this city, at which time clergy and laity of all local Christian churches will participate. The common bonds of unity among Christians will be stressed and pastors of the various churches will officiate.

Throughout the country during Christian Unity Week, which continues to January 25, ecumenical services in which Protestants, Orthodox and Roman Catholics will occupy pulpits in the others' churches will be featured.

For instance, the final service of the week of prayer will see the Suffragan Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of New York, the Rt. Rev. James Stuart Wetmore, preaching in the pulpit of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Cathedral. It will be the first time in the history of St. Patrick's that a Protestant clergyman has preached there.

Similarly, Msgr. Austin Vaughan of St. Joseph's Seminary at Dunwoodie, N. Y., a Roman Catholic institution, will preach at a service at St. Thomas Episcopal Church, New York. And interfaith service will be held in the Greek Orthodox Cathedral, with ecumenical messages given by Roman Catholic, Protestant and Orthodox clergy.

This is the 60th anniversary of the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity, founded by the Graymoor Friars in 1908. The nationwide services are sponsored jointly by the National Council and World Council of Churches (Protestant and Eastern Orthodox), the Bishops' Commission for Ecumenical and Interreligious Affairs (Roman Catholic) and the Graymoor Friars. They are a decisive sign of the progress toward unity in the last 60 years.

The 'Free' Nations

Commentators and columnists are all too prone to divide the world into just two neat packages—the free and the Communist-dominated. This labelling practice is a case of over-simplification at its worst.

Free—"free" from what and "free" to what? The Greek military junta got out the blue pencil and expunged from a letter from exiled Greek King Constantine one sentence in which he extolled the merits of democracy. The mass of Greeks never read their King's full statement. This, in the very seat of democracy, in a nation that, thanks to Marshall Plan aid, the Communist conspiracy was beaten down two decades ago.

Take Spain. Generalissimo Franco is kicking up again. Despite a law virtually abolishing censorship night onto two years ago, a new "Official Secrets Law" has been sent to the Cortes (Parliament); it calls for a ban on news about deliberations of either the Council of Ministers or the Council of the Realm—no stories allowed on subjects of national defense, public order, or of affairs of a political, diplomatic, scientific, financial or technical nature. The Barcelona Journalists Association, as well as some newspapers, has condemned the measure, branding it as dooming the right of citizens "not to be governed in secret." Since 1951, when the Cortes was reconstituted, it has never turned down a bill proposed by the Cabinet, and isn't expected to turn down this one.

Spain is "free"?

The International Press Institute recently noted that prior to the brief May-June war between Israel and the Arabs, the press in those countries had degenerated into mere instruments of war propaganda. Haiti was cited as a journalistic "black spot."

We're all a little too free with the use of the word "free." The unhappy fact is that freedom is not quite so abundant in some of the non-Communist nations as we'd like to believe.

How Will New British Policy Affect U.S.

WASHINGTON — Great Britain's pull-out as a major military or naval force in the preservation of peace throughout the world has caused consternation here because it means that the United States is left with the main burden of protecting small as well as large nations which may be threatened by Communist imperialism.

Perhaps the biggest single factor contributing to the British decision is the expense of maintaining up-to-date equipment even for conventional wars while nuclear strength is today the only preventive of a world war.

Many nations—like Great Britain—are beginning to feel, more-over, that, as long as the United States and the Soviet Union maintain a stalemate, there is no real need for building up their own armament and that local uprisings of a serious nature can be left either to the United States or to the United Nations to police.

Maybe the men who formulate British foreign policy would have been willing to help defend the Middle East and Southeast Asia, but economic weakness has dictated another course. The United States is up against grave risks to its own economic future if there is a continuation of its present spending all over the world. Yet the policymakers of the American government have come to believe that they have no other choice. Either Southeast Asia, for instance, has to be defended and a watchful eye kept on the Middle East or else the Soviets would move in and take over.

The key to world peace, therefore, is in Moscow. If up the smaller countries became unnecessary, Red China by itself would not be a threat to peace.

The British action in withdrawing from Asia, despite commitments in SEATO and to the commonwealth countries of the area, is accompanied by the prospect of a British navy without aircraft carriers and a Royal Air Force without effective air power. Will the Russians now take advantage of this change to start trouble on the borders of West Germany? Will Moscow encourage Nasser to start a new war with Israel? Will the United States, if it stops bombing North Vietnam, find itself frustrated by a Communist takeover of South Vietnam? These are questions that make the effects of the new British policy more difficult to foresee.

Hence, the United States may have to begin an "agonizing reappraisal" of its position in Europe as well as Asia. This requires a re-examination of the structure of the United Nations itself. For a new alliance would have to be formed from those large and small nations of the world which may wish to ally themselves with the United States to protect their independence against Communist aggression—the Russians and the United States were to come to an agreement, so that future military operations to back sion. Some realignment is going to be necessary on the part of many countries if American power is to be made available to help defend them. Certainly the job cannot be done by the United States alone.

The only ray of hope could come from the Soviet Union. It has been having plenty of internal troubles in recent months, and the economic pressure for a better life within its borders is analogous to the economic problems that have caused Great Britain to diminish its military force outside its own territory.

The big question before the major powers of the world is whether they are going to spend a large proportion of their money for military purposes or for improvement of the living conditions of their respective populations. What is needed, most of all, is not only a limitation of armament expenditures but a repression of imperialistic ambitions both in the Soviet Union and Red China which have threatened the peace of every continent.

It certainly is time for negotiations with Moscow and Peking to achieve a real truce in the world. If a truce were attained, the Vietnam War as well as other local conflicts would be automatically extinguished along with the threats of war.

Mayor Cornelius Cox today proclaimed Jan. 21-27 as Jaycee Week in Saugerties and asked local organizations to cooperate in the observance.

He said the purpose of the week is to focus attention on young men and the work they are doing, and emphasize that the Saugerties Jaycees have done an outstanding job in the field of community service.

During Jaycee Week observance here, the U. S. Jaycees will be recognizing America's Ten Outstanding Young Men of 1967 in St. Paul, Minn.

The week celebrates the founding of the Jaycees in 1915, when Henry Giessenbier saw a need for a young men's civic group and organized the first chapter, according to local Jaycee President Larry Sasser. The movement spread so fast that in 1920, the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce was formed with 24 cities represented. The Saugerties Jaycees were formed in 1956. The name of the national organization was changed from U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce to The U. S. Jaycees in 1965.

Over the years, he explained, the Saugerties Jaycees have brought to the community many cultural and educational programs; such as the Gay Parisienne, Nutcracker, and Little Match Girl Ballets; Fourth of July celebration and parade, trip to orient; the Easter egg hunt; and the Jaycee recreation park in Barclay Heights. Built on the foundation of creating opportunities for leadership training through community betterment projects, the Jaycees today, over 260,000 strong, are active in 6,000 communities in the United States with headquarters in Tulsa, Okla.

Priests Suspended For Guatemala Roles

MARYKNOLL, N.Y. (AP) — aid to poor Indians, villagers and others in Guatemala but said they had violated a Maryknoll ban on missionary "interference in the internal political affairs of a host country." Father McCormack's statement did not mention the word "guerrilla." But a spokesman at Maryknoll headquarters said the order had received information last month that the Melvilles were involved in the "guerrilla movement."

The suspensions mean that the two brothers cannot perform priestly functions, such as saying Mass and hearing confessions, pending disposition of their cases by their superiors.

A Maryknoll spokesman said the Melvilles were last reported in Mexico City.

Strikes Loom At Upstate GM Plants

The possibility of strikes involving 7,600 workers loomed today at General Motors Corp. plants in Lockport and the Town of Tonawanda, just north of Buffalo.

Confronted with a 9:15 a.m. deadline set by the United Auto Workers, negotiators for the giant automotive firm and the union worked into the early-morning hours in an attempt to iron out local-contract details for the 2,600 workers at the Chevrolet Foundry in Tonawanda.

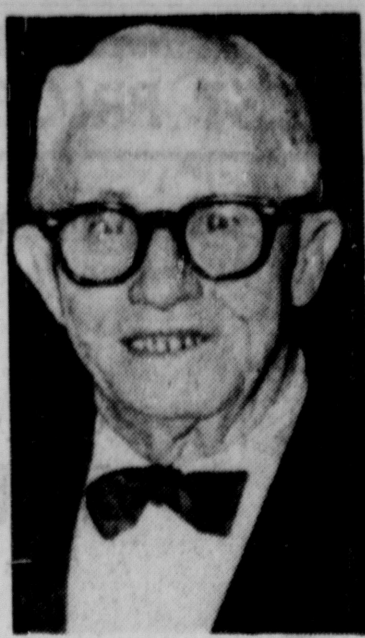

The prospect of a strike was stronger at the Harrison Radiator Division plant in Lockport, which employs 5,000 persons.

There Thursday, skilled workers voted, 212-45, to ratify a contract that received tentative approval earlier in the week. Production workers, however, rejected the pact by a 25-vote margin, 491-466. A negative vote by either of the employee classifications vetoes the proposal.

The situation was brighter in Rochester, where officials of GM's Rochester Products Division and UAW Local 1097 reached tentative agreement on local issues after 27 consecutive hours of bargaining.

Details of the pact were not announced. A ratification vote by the 3,300 UAW members is the next step, possibly taking place Sunday.

Principal issues in the Tonawanda talks involved washup time, job classifications and protective clothing.

Kills Wife, Self With Shotgun

WAYLAND, N.Y. (AP) — A 51-year-old dairy farmer with a history of mental problems killed his wife Thursday with three shotgun blasts and then took his own life, State Police said.

The bodies of Alfred Ernst and his wife Cecilia, 46, were found at their home five miles northwest of this Western New York community. Two of their six children, boys aged 12 and 13, made the discovery on their return from school, about three hours after the shootings, troops said.

Mrs. Ernst's body was found in the kitchen and her husband's was in the back yard. He had been killed by two blasts from a 12-gauge shotgun, investigators said.

More Arrests Are Expected In Marcus Probe

NEW YORK (AP) — Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan says his investigators are continuing to probe the intricate affairs connected with the Marcus scandal. There were expectations of more arrests.

Former Water Commissioner James L. Marcus, already under indictment in a federal kickback case, was arrested Thursday under state laws and charged with bribery, conspiracy and taking $10,000 in illegal fees.

Hogan said the payment was intended to insure a firm emergency contracts from the water department with which Marcus was associated while serving as an unsalaried aide to Mayor John W. Lindsay.

Authorities said the payment was apparently in vain for city records show the firm never received any emergency contracts or did any other business with the city.

Attorney Herbert Rikin, 41, reportedly marked for murder as a defendant and witness in the federal kickback case, was arrested with Marcus Thursday and accused of the same crimes.

Both men were paroled by Criminal Court Judge Jack Rosenberg for a hearing next month. Maximum penalty on the state charges is 10 years in prison.

Motorist Hurt

Trooper Brian O'Connor of Highland issued the summons. He reported the Sheeley car was attempting a left turn when it was in collision with a car driven by Glenn Hasbrouck, 28, of New Paltz.

The surgeon also reported Kasperak's liver "looked better to the eye." He said he could not tell further until a report on a biopsy.

Kasperak, the fourth human heart transplant case, was said to be alert and awake after the operation.

In Cape Town, Philip Blai-burg, 58, was reported making such satisfactory progress that his surgeon, Dr. Christiaan Barnard, may permit him to return home by Feb. 8.

Strikes Loom At Upstate CM Plants

The possibility of strikes involving 7,600 workers loomed today at General Motors Corp. plants in Lockport and the Town of Tonawanda, just north of Buffalo.

Confronted with a 9:15 a.m. deadline set by the United Auto Workers, negotiators for the giant automotive firm and the union worked into the early-morning hours in an attempt to iron out local-contract details for the 2,600 workers at the Chevrolet Foundry in Tonawanda.

The prospect of a strike was stronger at the Harrison Radiator Division plant in Lockport, which employs 5,000 persons.

There Thursday, skilled workers voted, 212-45, to ratify a contract that received tentative approval earlier in the week. Production workers, however, rejected the pact by a 25-vote margin, 491-466. A negative vote by either of the employee classifications vetoes the proposal.

The situation was brighter in Rochester, where officials of GM's Rochester Products Division and UAW Local 1097 reached tentative agreement on local issues after 27 consecutive hours of bargaining.

Details of the pact were not announced. A ratification vote by the 3,300 UAW members is the next step, possibly taking place Sunday.

Principal issues in the Tonawanda talks involved washup time, job classifications and protective clothing.

More Arrests Are Expected In Marcus Probe

NEW YORK (AP) — Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan says his investigators are continuing to probe the intricate affairs connected with the Marcus scandal. There were expectations of more arrests.

Former Water Commissioner James L. Marcus, already under indictment in a federal kickback case, was arrested Thursday under state laws and charged with bribery, conspiracy and taking $100,000 in illegal fees.

Hogan said the payment was intended to insure a firm emergency contracts from the water department with which Marcus was associated while serving as an unsalaried aide to Mayor John V. Lindsay.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

Facts About Your Garden Soil: Any one who works with soil likes to scoop up a handful and let it dribble through his fingers. This way you can tell if your soil has good working quality or "tilth." If a soil is nice and "loamy"—it means it's just right for plants. Loams (called "loom") by old-timers are simply a well-balanced mixture of large, medium and small particles—known as sand, silt and clay. If your soil isn't around and convert it into a workable loam. You do this by adding organic matter, such as compost, peatmoss, sawdust, leaves, dead weeds and plants removed in cleaning up the garden, lawn clippings, wood chips, kitchen scraps, muck, barnyard manures, green manures—crops such as winter rye, and buckwheat, legumes such as clover, vetch, which are turned under.

Nature breaks down soils into loams. Sun, with its drying action, assisted by dry winds and by plants, help produce a loam. Temperature works for the gardener, too. When it drops low enough to freeze the ground the soil tends to break up later in good working condition. Earthworms help by leaving aeration channels, ideal for heavy soils. The workability of any soil is improved by adding plant refuse, and fertilizers. Well fed plants have good root systems and on dry ing, leave large amounts of residues in the soil. Organic matter is the best soil conditioner you can get, and the cheapest.

Starting Your Own Plants: It won't be long before you'll be starting your own melons, peonies, tomatoes and other "potted" items which need an early start for outdoor plant. Some gardeners use clay pots, others use peat pots, and a newer wrinkle consists of using "Jiffy-7 Pellets," for starting seeds.

These look like a wafer or a checker, about 1/4 inch thick. Each pellet consists of a growing medium (sterile sphagnum peat with plant food added) enclosed by a plastic mesh. When you add water, each pellet swells in minutes into a cylinder nearly 2 inches across and over 2 inches high, all ready to sow seed or set transplants. No pot is needed, since the plastic net holds the cylindrical shape of the peat moss. All you do is line the pellets in a flat tray or pan so that the edges are touching, then add water to the trays, to a depth of an inch.

When pellets have completely expanded, sow the seed or set seedlings plants.

Green Thumb Clinic: "Please tell me if there is a difference between a Christmas Cactus and a Thanksgiving Cactus. I have a plant which should bloom at Christmas but hasn't."

Answer: Yes, there's a Christmas and a Thanksgiving Cactus. The Christmas cactus usually starts blooming around Christmas and continues into the winter. The Thanksgiving Cactus starts to bloom around Thanksgiving.

Green Thumb Clinic: A reader writes: "Please tell me if some poinsettias keep better than others."

Answer: Yes, the Paul Mikelsen is a red that holds its color for several months. There are some pinks which hold up fine, and are useful for spring flowering. White varieties are available and many of these hold up fine. Keep the soil uniformly moist and grow in a bright window. At night, keep the plants around 65 degs. for longer mileage.

Columbia Man Hurt in Fall

A Columbia County man was critically injured early Thursday afternoon when he fell about 24 feet and landed on concrete flooring at the Rhinebeck Water Works site in Rhinecliff.

Anthony Scalera, of 24 Park Place, Hudson, was in the intensive care ward and under sedation today at Vassar Hospital. He suffered a broken back and other injuries, according to reports.

A spokesman at the water works told a reporter that Scalera had just finished lunch when he went to the roof of the building to remove snow and ice. While doing that chore he slipped and plunged through the opening of a skylight to the floor.

Other workmen rushed to his aid. The Rhinebeck First Aid and Rescue Squad was summoned and the injured man was rushed to the hospital in Poughkeepsie.

Rhinebeck State Police investigated.

Cape-Cod Planning Features Simplicity

By JACK McLENEY

using the accompanying coupon.

The real test of Cape Cod planning is in the functional quality of the floor plan. Trends in modern design have led in many directions, but still standing out among these ultra homes is the basic one-and-a-half story dwelling that proved its worth when America was young and our forefathers were in need of a house that offered sound, fundamental construction and shelter capabilities to house a growing family.

The beauty of the Cape-Codder is found in its very simplicity and reaffirmed by the manner in which it fits into the contemporary scene. The designer today offers his version of such a plan in the "Dunklee," with modifications that bring it completely up to date. As always, one of the big basic values of the Cape is its adaptability to present needs with provisions for future expansion.

The "Dunklee" is complete in every way. There is a big living room, a formal dining room, a spacious kitchen with dining area, a single bedroom and a lavatory. The second level has two large bedrooms, five closets and a full bath.

The "Dunklee" is finished externally in white cedar (shingles unpainted), double hung stock windows all around and rust colored trim and shutters. The basic house contains 936 square feet of space and the overall with breezeway and garage is 62 feet.

How To Get Along With Your In-Laws

Knock, Knock.
Who's there?
Yerma.
Yerma, who?
Yer mother-in-law, that's who!

If that line doesn't seem funny to you, chances are you should think about some of your feelings toward that other side of the coin—your in-laws.

Some of the negative feelings and attitudes we have toward in-laws are the inherited fears of our parents! They had to deal with aging, loose-end people rattling around in a lonely house—people who were generally out of tune with the times. But the song has changed say the people at Shulton and they advise that it's high time to recognize the fact that many in-laws are swingers—and can be as much fun as friends!

If your in-laws are typical, they are 3 to 7 years younger than your parents' in-laws—and because of advances in medicine and a generally improved standard of living—may seem even younger! So don't treat them like old fogies!

Of relative importance is the estimate of some medical authorities that an adult now reaches 50 before he has to deal with the problems of aging he used to face at 40.

Another comforting thought is added by Dr. Alex Comfort, an expert on aging, who says that, biological matters aside, a person's age is usually determined by others according to the social role he plays!

You can help your old-timers to feel younger—and be younger—by following these fine up-to-date suggestions for a smoother relationship:

1. GET INTO EACH OTHER'S HAIR!

While mothers and daughters-in-law of bygone days may have gotten acquainted by cooking dinner or sewing together (many times because they shared the same house), today's get-together may be at the theatre or over a mutual hair coloring session.

By sharing your beauty treatment with her, and offering her suggestions, like coloring her hair when you do yours, you may do a lot to make your mother-in-law feel that her son's marriage hasn't automatically aged her—and it can't hurt to give your mom the same treatment too!

2. SAY "NO NO" EVEN WHEN THERE'S "YES YES" IN THEIR EYES! Don't accept favors which may prove an imposition. Expensive gifts should be refused if they really can't afford them. They may also love to lavish hospitality—but, "Come and stay with us," while sincerely meant, can be a strain on everybody—especially if you have young children.

Staying at a hotel or motel nearby gives everybody an opportunity for privacy and a chance to live at their own pace. If this is really impractical, stay at their house, but leave before the welcome wears.

3. DON'T LET THEIR ANNIVERSARY WALTZ BY!

Do you know when your parents' and your in-laws' wedding anniversaries are? Their birthdays? Your mother-in-law's special yearly project such as a church bazaar?

Keeping a reminder book and sending flowers and cards or even planning a surprise party—does wonders for family relationships.

Don't let all of the effort of keeping in touch fall upon them—let them know you share the happiness of their special days.

And when they do a special favor for you—be sure and send a thank you card.

HIRE HANDS!

It's easy for in-laws to fall into the role of unpaid servants, and baby-sitters—who else is available for all those emergencies and hospital confinements? Because they're so willing doesn't always mean they're able!

If you depend on them to help you out, at least give them as much notice in advance as you possibly can—and reciprocate by doing your mother-in-law's grocery shopping, for instance, for the time they spend for you.

5. TAKE HIM OUT TO THE BALL GAME

Don't let your father-in-law become the forgotten man. Encourage his advice not only on financial matters but child raising ones. Talk to him about the topics he's most interested in, aside from the family. Let your husband take him hunting or fishing alone. Or have a double-header—let the men go to a baseball game while you take your mother-in-law to a fashion show or movie.

Over familiarity can lead to contempt but genuine interest and concern leads to content. The family way can be the best way to realizing a full happy life!

The Mature Parent

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: Though our 16-year-old boy has a good brain, he is not applying it to school work. Yet he knows that he is already competing for acceptance by a good college with thousands of other boys. He postpones getting at his homework until late at night when he's too tired to do his best with it. One of his teachers recently told me that he lacks "motivation." He had to be tutored in math last summer and his marks are sagging again.

ANSWER: If we parents show too much interest in operating a child's toy, he will withdraw his own interest from it. And he will do exactly the same thing with his brain. If we show too much interest in it by discussing it with his teachers, pushing him at homework and generally carrying on as though his brain were our brain, he will renounce his own interest in it and quit using it.

Genuine motivation can only start from within. All wishes, drives and needs arising out of social situation alone may be considered secondary. Those are statements made by Dr. Simon I. Wenkart, an eminent psychoanalyst in a new book entitled "Motivations in Play, Games and Sports." And they hold true whether the child is playing a game of Chinese checkers against one competitor—or whether he's playing this new game of "college acceptance" against thousands.

It also applies to us. For the "motivation" which drives us to push at a child's brain to make it take him into college is what Wenkart calls a "secondary" one. It is not the creation of our inside love for the child but is the product of our "social situation"—the one which insists that he's doomed to nothingness if he doesn't win the "college acceptance" game.

It is time we recognized this social-based motivation of ours not merely as secondary but as dangerous, too, for the kids can't stand the pushing. They've arrived at a time of life when parental pushing is seen as the ultimate offense. Which is why so many of them either decide to fail or drop out of college as soon as we've pushed them into one. They arrange the failures or drop-outs in order to say to us pushers:

"If you think I intend to exercise my brain to give you satisfaction, you've got another thing coming. Because I won't. I'll exercise it for my own satisfaction or not exercise it at all."

VACCINE BOOSTER SHOTS VALUABLE FLU CONTROL

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, MD

Q—Why do some doctors insist on a second shot of flu vaccine two to eight weeks after the first one and others say one is enough?

A—All persons receiving influenza vaccine for the first time or several years after the last vaccination should get a second injection. Those who have been vaccinated every year since 1963 need only a single booster injection, preferably in the late fall. The vaccine should not be given to anyone who is allergic to eggs.

Q—Is there any way to get rid of the scars caused by acne.

A—Some skin specialists use a wire brush that rotates at high speed to remove these scars. This process is called dermabrasion or surgical planing.

Q—I have heard that eating yeast can clear up acne. How does this work? How much yeast should I take?

A—Although yeast and various other vitamin-rich preparations have been used in the treatment of acne, there is no evidence that they do any good.

Q—I am 45 and have acne on my face. Vitamin O helps a little but doesn't cure it. What do you advise?

A—Although in most persons adolescent acne clears up before the 20th birthday, in some it persists in adult life. There is no simple cure for this. Skin specialists report good results in some victims with a combination of antibiotics and female hormone.

Q—I never use bleaches or dyes on my hair but my scalp breaks out with painful pimples. How can I get rid of them?

A—This is acne necrotica which is not related to teenage acne vulgaris. Some victims are helped by rubbing white ammoniated mercury ointment (10 per cent) into the scalp three or four times a week before retriming and washing it out thoroughly in the morning.

Q—My doctor says I have acne rosacea. What is the best treatment for it?

A—The cause of this disease is not known but it is aggravated by emotional upsets and exposure to heat, cold and wind. If local applications and avoidance of aggravation factors don't help you, electrolysis of the involved area by a skin specialist may be beneficial.

Q—My doctor says I have neurosyphilis. What is the best treatment?

A—This is a combined inflammation of nerves and muscles. Several causes have been observed and the treatment would depend on the cause.

Q—Can a person who has peptic ulcer drink beer?

A—Not without irritating the ulcer.

Pleasant send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, MD, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

He postpones getting at his homework until late at night when he's too tired to do his best with it. One of his teachers recently told me that he lacks "motivation." He had to be tutored in math last summer and his marks are sagging again.

ANSWER: If we parents show too much interest in operating a child's toy, he will withdraw his own interest from it. And he will do exactly the same thing with his brain. If we show too much interest in it by discussing it with his teachers, pushing him at homework and generally carrying on as though his brain were our brain, he will renounce his own interest in it and quit using it.

Genuine motivation can only start from within. All wishes, drives and needs arising out of social situation alone may be considered secondary. Those are statements made by Dr. Simon I. Wenkart, an eminent psychoanalyst in a new book entitled "Motivations in Play, Games and Sports." And they hold true whether the child is playing a game of Chinese checkers against one competitor—or whether he's playing this new game of "college acceptance" against thousands.

It also applies to us. For the "motivation" which drives us to push at a child's brain to make it take him into college is what Wenkart calls a "secondary" one. It is not the creation of our inside love for the child but is the product of our "social situation"—the one which insists that he's doomed to nothingness if he doesn't win the "college acceptance" game.

It is time we recognized this social-based motivation of ours not merely as secondary but as dangerous, too, for the kids can't stand the pushing. They've arrived at a time of life when parental pushing is seen as the ultimate offense. Which is why so many of them either decide to fail or drop out of college as soon as we've pushed them into one. They arrange the failures or drop-outs in order to say to us pushers: "If you think I intend to exercise my brain to give you satisfaction, you've got another thing coming. Because I won't. I'll exercise it for my own satisfaction or not exercise it at all."

VACCINE BOOSTER SHOTS VALUABLE FLU CONTROL

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, MD

Q—Why do some doctors insist on a second shot of flu vaccine two to eight weeks after the first one and others say one is enough?

A—All persons receiving influenza vaccine for the first time or several years after the last vaccination should get a second injection. Those who have been vaccinated every year since 1963 need only a single booster injection, preferably in the late fall. The vaccine should not be given to anyone who is allergic to eggs.

Q—Is there any way to get rid of the scars caused by acne.

A—Some skin specialists use a wire brush that rotates at high speed to remove these scars. This process is called dermabrasion or surgical planing.

Q—I have heard that eating yeast can clear up acne. How does this work? How much yeast should I take?

A—Although yeast and various other vitamin-rich preparations have been used in the treatment of acne, there is no evidence that they do any good.

Q—I am 45 and have acne on my face. Vitamin O helps a little but doesn't cure it. What do you advise?

A—Although in most persons adolescent acne clears up before the 20th birthday, in some it persists in adult life. There is no simple cure for this. Skin specialists report good results in some victims with a combination of antibiotics and female hormone.

Q—I never use bleaches or dyes on my hair but my scalp breaks out with painful pimples. How can I get rid of them?

A—This is acne necrotica which is not related to teenage acne vulgaris. Some victims are helped by rubbing white antimony mercury ointment (10 per cent) into the scalp three or four times a week before retreating and washing it out thoroughly in the morning.

Q—My doctor says I have acne rosacea. What is the best treatment for it?

A—The cause of this disease is not known but it is aggravated by emotional upsets and exposure to heat, cold and wind. If local applications and avoidance of aggravation factors don't help you, electrolysis of the involved area by a skin specialist may be beneficial.

Q—My doctor says I have neuromyositis. What is the best treatment?

A—This is a combined inflammation of nerves and muscles. Several causes have been observed and the treatment would depend on the cause.

Q—Can a person who has peptic ulcer drink beer?

A—Not without irritating the ulcer.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, MD, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Social Security, Medicare Effects on Hudson Valley

How do the new Social Security and Medicare amendments affect residents of the Mid-Hudson area? That will be the question answered by experts from the regional Social Security office, physical assistant district office manager; and Oscar Ernst, come," said Drescher. "There will be a question and answer session in which the audience may bring up points not stressed by the speakers." Ernst will discuss changes concerning Medicare. "Of course, we are hoping for a good turnout of people 65 years or older or approaching the age of 65, but we expect that we'll also have a chance to confer with community representatives who advise the elderly," Drescher said. Ernst said that personnel directors of large firms, social workers, health service representatives, newspaper and radio reporters, and representatives from organized labor would find the sessions valuable. "Even friends and relatives of the elderly would find the conference helpful, we believe," he added.

Fire Control Center Progressing, Occupancy by Early April Possible

The new Ulster County fire control center under construction at Golden Hill is expected to be ready for occupancy late March or early April.

Progress on the new $42,000 facility was reported at Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association meeting this week at Esopus Town Hall, Port Ewen.

Winfred Snyder, county fire coordinator outlined the projection for operation of the center and also gave his report on 700 calls handled at the control center. He noted 64 were fire calls; four Mutual Aid, 35 emergency and three false alarms. Joseph Sills Jr., of St. Remy Fire Company, a member of Ulster County Fire Police asked for greater cooperation of the fire companies in the county to organize fire police units within their companies.

He spoke of the excellent operation of the fire police units now operating in the county.

To Determine Suitability

Set Soil Survey of Ulster County Lands

A soil survey to determine the suitability of Ulster County lands for such things as homesites, subdivision development, septic tanks, roads, parking areas, and new construction will be undertaken immediately with a completion date set for 1970-71.

A complete survey of the towns of New Paltz and Lloyd will be completed this year, according to an announcement made by the Ulster County Soil and Water Conservation District chairman, Victor McCord and Francis E. Mulvaney, soil conservationist assisting the district.

Once completed, the results will be available to anyone who wishes soil information.

Funds Were Appropriated

The announced acceleration of the survey which has been in progress on a limited basis was made possible through funds appropriated in this year's county budget. Without the additional funds, McCord explained, the project would have taken 18 years to complete at the present rate.

The district now plans to hire two professional soil surveyors and, as soon as weather permits they will begin soils mapping of the 60,000 acres in the New Paltz-Lloyd area. That portion of the program is expected to be completed by fall.

The district board of directors decided on initiating the survey in the New Paltz area on the basis of local interest in urban expansion, in agriculture and in the soil surveys already completed, McCord said.

Block mapping by townships is the most efficient way of accomplishing the work and of reaching the greatest number of townships within the mapping season.

Will Be Separated

Areas of different soils will be separated on the basis of wetness, depth of bedrock, kind and depth of hardpan and texture (relative amounts of sand, silt and clay).

These characteristics are observed through the use of a screw auger and tied in with known soil profiles observed in deep hole pits.

McCord said that at the present time growers south of New Paltz are using soil interpretations to determine the suitability of certain apple root stocks for growth in fields on their orchards.

All county mapping until now has been done by Larry Tornes, soil scientist, whom the district hopes to hire full time.

New Ulster Academy Still Looking For Home

By JEAN F. DOLAN

Efforts to find a site for Kingston's newest school were renewed this week as Ulster Academy's site selection committee and the Fair Street Reformed Church ceased negotiations.

The independent school which is slated to open in September has been considering several sites in the Kingston city environs, including Fair Street Education Building, the former Academy of St. Ursula on Grove Street and St. Anne's Convent on Broadway.

Discussions were held earlier this month between school officials and representatives of the church. Negotiations were halted this week and at the academy board of trustees meeting Wednesday night it was decided to seek other possible locations within the greater Kingston area.

All other phases of establishment of the new school are going at a great rate, according to Raymond A. Nelson, headmaster.

Progress in faculty selection has been made as applications of high caliber teachers pour in from as far away as the Philippines. To date, 74 applications have been received for the eight teaching posts open at the school.

At this point, applications are being rejected unless the faculty hopeful has a masters degree or beyond; three to five years experience and strong recommendations from previous school affiliations.

Phi Beta Kappa applicants from some of the nation's outstanding halls of learning have answered advertisements in the Sunday New York Times education section or have been channeled to the local board by various school service associations.

Nelson credits the relatively high salary offered at Ulster Academy and the promise of academic freedom in a new and growing school with the excellent qualifications of educators attracted to the school.

He noted that the application from the Latin instructor in the Philippines not only carried testimony of academic achievement, experience but the endorsement and recommendation of Carlos P. Romulo, former president of the Islands.

Although catalogues are still at the printer, 12 students have submitted applications. The first of a series of aptitude and achievement tests will be administered at the Academy office, 17 Pearl Street, Feb. 3 at 10 a.m.

Curriculum and costs will be outlined as well as detailed descriptions of community service programs, athletic and activities schedules.

The community service projects will offer academic credits in addition to meaningful experience for students participating.

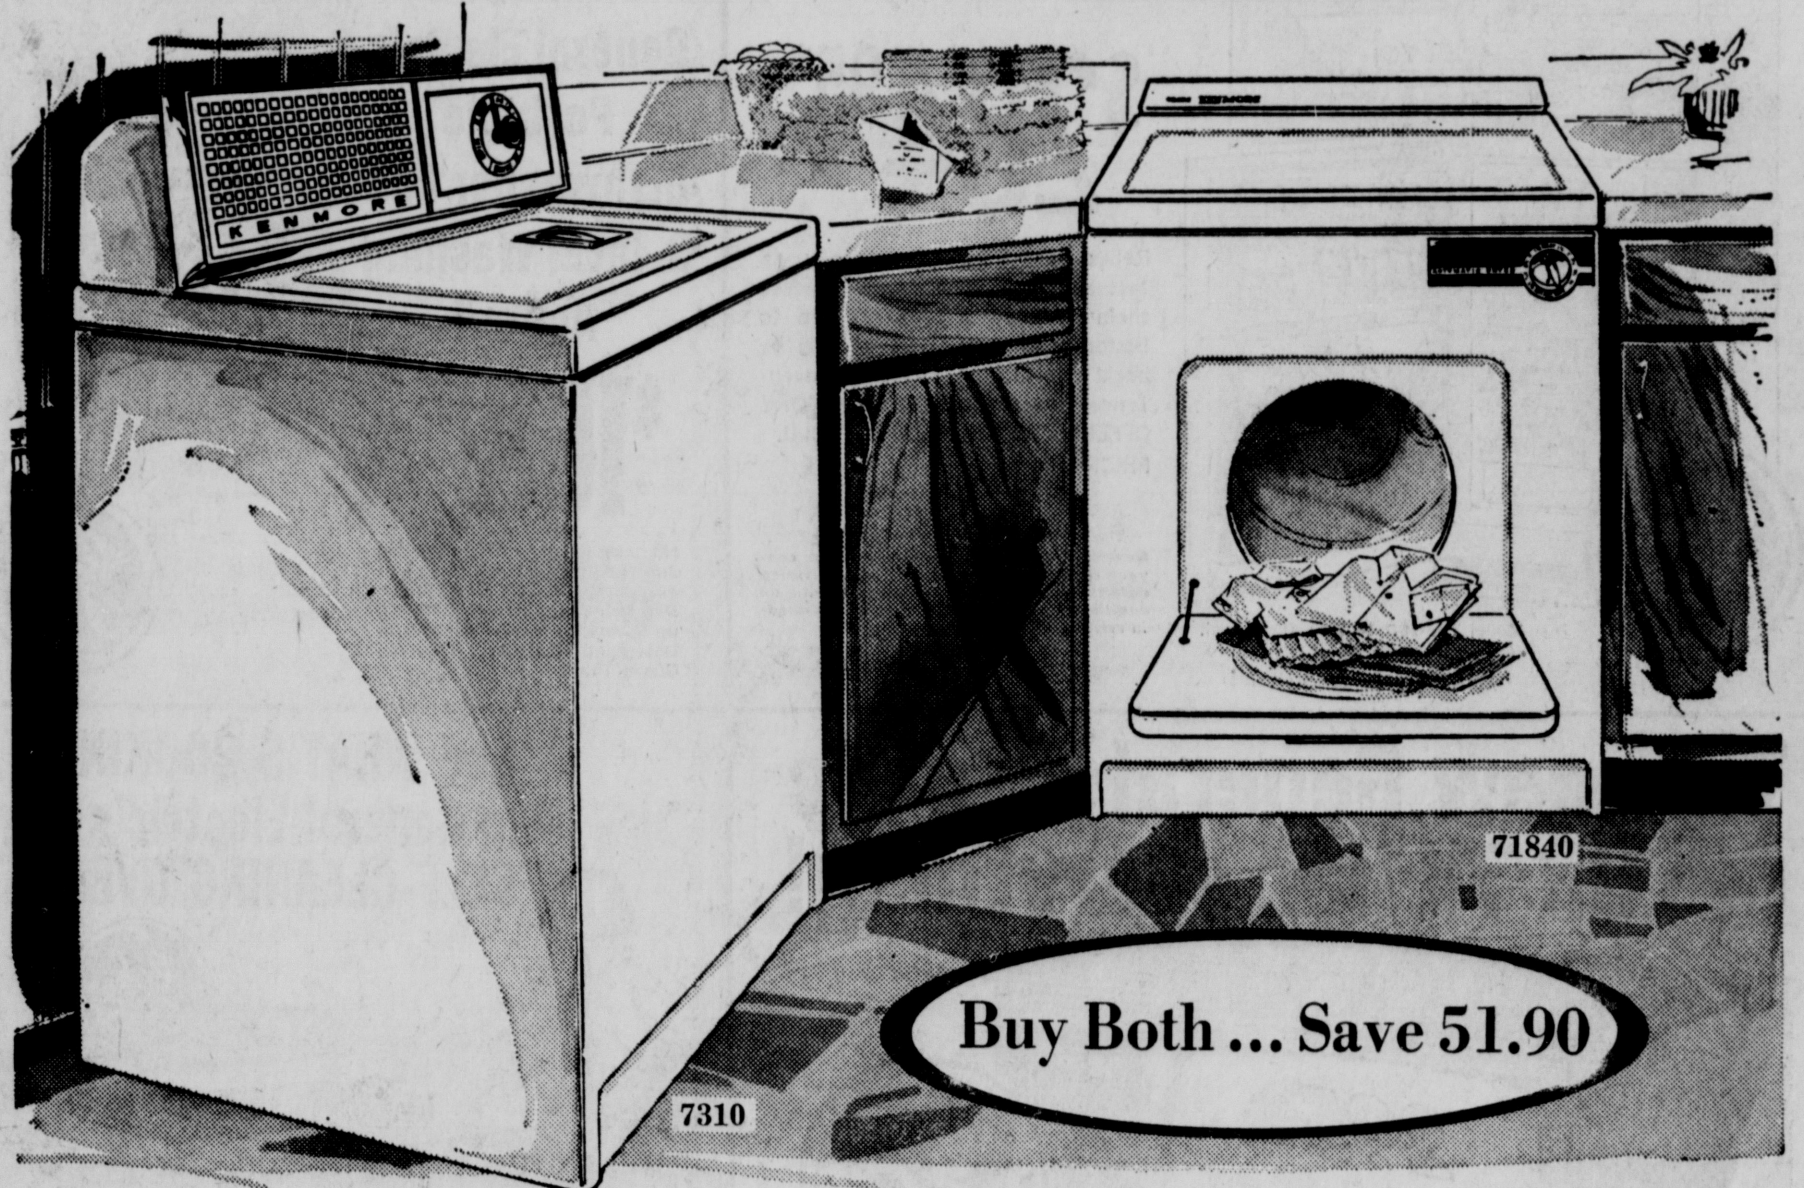

Stressing that the school is "pledged to excellence," Nelson said that the student body should reflect a "broad range of students achievement and background." "Potential" is of greater importance than a record of outstanding academic achievement. For the fullest benefit to all associated with the school a heterogeneous student body is the optimum situation.

Fire Control Center Progressing, Occupancy by Early April Possible

The new Ulster County fire control center under construction at Golden Hill is expected to be ready for occupancy late March or early April.

Progress on the new $42,000 facility was reported at Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association meeting this week at Esopus Town Hall, Port Ewen. Winfred Snyder, county fire coordinator outlined the projection for operation of the center and also gave his report on 700 calls handled at the control center. He noted 64 were fire calls; four Mutual Aid, 35 emergency and three false alarms.

Joseph Sills Jr., of St. Remy Fire Company, a member of Ulster County Fire Police asked for greater cooperation of the fire companies in the county to organize fire police units within their companies.

He spoke of the excellent operation of the fire police units now operating in the county.

Poughkeepsie Asks State Fire Probe

Fire Chief Irving Merrick of Poughkeepsie has called upon the State Board of Fire Underwriters to investigate a 3-alarm fire that destroyed a 5-building complex in lower Main Street in that city early Thursday.

The fire burned out Millman's Interiors furniture store and wallpaper and paint store. It was the fifth major fire in the Dutchess county city since Christmas night.

City Manager Theodore Maurer commenting on the investigation asked by Chief Merrick, said the Board of Fire Underwriters has been requested to find the cause of the latest fire, if possible. Maurer noted that there was no evidence of arson.

Less than two weeks ago a 3-alarm blaze destroyed a brick building in the central business section of Poughkeepsie on Main Street which housed the J. Arnold Wood jewelry store and apartments.

No Morality Problem Here, Says Erbstein

Dr. George B. Erbstein, president of Ulster County Community College, last night told a Marbletown Citizens Organization meeting that to date a morality crisis hadn't threatened the Stone Ridge Campus.

Erbstein said, "so far we haven't been plagued with the morality problems facing other colleges." He said he didn't anticipate any such problems either.

Speaking to approximately 70 persons at the Stone Ridge Legion Hall, the college president also declared that by 1969 a classroom shortage would face the institution. He said the solution to such a shortage could be solved by either building additional space on the campus or renting facilities as part of the Phase Three Extension Program.

Asks Treatment As Addict

A 21-year-old Kingston man may receive treatment as a narcotics addict instead of facing trial on charges involving the alleged issuance of a fraudulent check in Poughkeepsie.

Phillip Joseph Hutton, who told police at the time of his arrest on Nov. 17 that he resided on Elmendorf Street, this city, said in Poughkeepsie City Court earlier this week that he is an addict and requested hospital treatment under Article 9 of the Mental Hygiene Law.

Assistant District Attorney G. Gordon Liddy explained that Article 9 provides for the treatment of a person dependent on drugs if he is arrested and charged with a crime. Liddy said papers will be completed on Monday to apply for an examination which will determine if Hutton is dependent on narcotics.

Hutton was originally charged with issuing a fraudulent check for $39.95 to the Active Market, 507 Main Street, Poughkeepsie. The felony charge later was reduced to a misdemeanor. Reports from Poughkeepsie said Hutton had been confined to the Ulster County jail in connection with a New Paltz burglary investigation.

Adjourn Hearing

Rodriguez is accused of stabbing Albert Smith of Oak Ridge, during a quarrel at Gene's Bar and Grill, Center Street, Ellenville, on the night of Jan. 14. Rodriguez is free on bail pending disposition of the charge.

Loitering Charged
Charged with loitering on the property of the Wallkill Central High School Thursday afternoon, Otilio Montero, 18, of Plattkill, is in the Ulster County jail under sentence of 15 days, according to Highland State Police. School officials complained to authorities about Montero, who they said refused to leave the school grounds. A warrant was issued and Trooper R. A. Bunning took the Plattkill youth into custody at 3:15 p. m. Arraigned before Gardiner Justice Samuel Stokes, Montero pleaded guilty to loitering and was sentenced to jail.

Shoot Down

could use the truce to bring up reinforcements and supplies for the second stage.

The Marines did the kicking off in the battle Thursday, which began when a company of Leathernecks on a sweeping mission ran into about 50 North Vietnamese a mile and a half below the DMZ near the Marine strongpoint at Con Thien.

During a withering exchange of small arms and automatic weapons fire, a second Marine company which had been in a blocking position maneuvered to reinforce the embattled company, then both companies came under artillery fire, apparently from guns hidden in caves and pits inside the DMZ.

American artillery and helicopter gunships were supporting the Marines, but the company that made the first contact had closed with the enemy and this prevented close-in artillery and helicopter support for a time.

As the battle developed, reinforcements swelled the North Vietnamese force to perhaps 200 men with bazooka-type rockets and mortars.

Pitted against them were perhaps twice as many Marines.

While the two Marine companies pressed their attack, a platoon from a third company took up a blocking position to the east. The ground fighting then spread over a wider area, and the American artillery and gunships pounded the hemmed-in Communist troops with devastating results.

Elsewhere in South Vietnam, Viet Cong terrorists were on the prowl.

U.S. officials said a mine killed 18 persons and wounded 38 in a crowded market place near Phu Vinh, in the Mekong Delta 60 miles south of Saigon. At the other end of the country, a sniper killed a hamlet chief as he walked along a road near the U.S. Marine post at Cam Lo.

In Da Nang, a 12-year-old boy demolished the police chief's unoccupied jeep with a grenade, but half an hour later police found the child in a nearby alley, wounded by fragments from the grenade.

"Eskimo" is a misnomer, the National Geographic says. Though the northlanders prefer cooked meat, they bear an Indian name meaning "eater of raw flesh."

Will Mail Report To Ulster Farmers

A report of payments made to area farmers under the U. S. Agricultural Conservation Program, feed grain, wheat and other subsidies, will be mailed during January, Joseph Saur, chairman of the Ulster County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee said today.

This report is expected to be helpful in preparing individual income tax returns, Saur stated. However, he said this would be the first such mailing in the history of the ASCS and could produce problems, Saur noted that farmers should check the reports against farm records for accuracy.

Poughkeepsie Asks State Fire Probe

Fire Chief Irving Merrick of Poughkeepsie has called upon the State Board of Fire Underwriters to investigate a 3-alarm fire that destroyed a 5-building complex in lower Main Street in that city early Thursday.

The fire burned out Millman's Interiors furniture store and wallpaper and paint store. It was the fifth major fire in the Dutchess county city since Christmas night.

City Manager Theodore Maurer commenting on the investigation asked by Chief Merrick, said the Board of Fire Underwriters has been requested to find the cause of the latest fire, if possible. Maurer noted that there was no evidence of arson.

Less than two weeks ago a 3-alarm blaze destroyed a brick building in the central business section of Poughkeepsie on Main Street which housed the J. Arnold Wood jewelry store and apartments.

Members of the trooper augmented team were not divulged at Freeman press time.

Condition Improves

Reports from Benedictine Hospital today listed the condition of Mrs. Corinne Eyley, 30, of Kolar Road, West Camp, as fair. She was admitted to the hospital on Wednesday and treated for lacerations of the throat and arms, according to state police.

No Morality Problem Here, Says Erbsstein

Dr. George B. Erbsstein, president of Ulster County Community College, last night told a Marbletown Citizens Organization meeting that to date a morality crisis hadn't threatened the Stone Ridge Campus.

Erbsstein said, "so far we haven't been plagued with the morality problems facing other colleges." He said he didn't anticipate any such problems either.

Speaking to approximately 70 persons at the Stone Ridge Legion Hall, the college president also declared that by 1969 a classroom shortage would face the institution. He said the solution to such a shortage could be solved by either building additional space on the campus or renting facilities as part of the Phase Three Extension Program.

Asks Treatment As Addict

A 21-year-old Kingston man may receive treatment as a narcotics addict instead of facing trial on charges involving the alleged issuance of a fraudulent check in Poughkeepsie.

Phillip Joseph Hutton, who told police at the time of his arrest on Nov. 17 that he resided on Elmendorf Street, this city, said in Poughkeepsie City Court earlier this week that he is an addict and requested hospital treatment under Article 9 of the Mental Hygiene Law.

Assistant District Attorney G. Gordon Liddy explained that Article 9 provides for the treatment of a person dependent on drugs if he is arrested and charged with a crime. Liddy said papers will be completed on Monday to apply for an examination which will determine if Hutton is dependent on narcotics.

Hutton was originally charged with issuing a fraudulent check for $39.95 to the Active Market, 507 Main Street, Poughkeepsie. The felony charge later was reduced to a misdemeanor. Reports from Poughkeepsie said Hutton had been confined to the Ulster County jail in connection with a New Paltz burglary investigation.

Adjourn Hearing

Hearing in the case of Ramon Rodriguez, of Ellenville, who is charged with first degree assault, has been adjourned by Police Judge Ronald Elias until Tuesday, Jan. 23 at 7 p. m. Rodriguez is accused of stabbing Alberta Smith of Oak Ridge, during a quarrel at Gene's Bar and Grill, Center Street, Ellenville, on the night of Jan. 14. Rodriguez is free on bail pending disposition of the charge.

Loitering Charged

Charged with loitering on the property of the Wallkill Central High School Thursday afternoon, Ottilio Montera, 18, of Plattekill, is in the Ulster County jail under sentence of 15 days, according to Highland State Police. School officials complained to authorities about Montera, who they said refused to leave the school grounds. A warrant was issued and Trooper R. A. Bunning took the Plattekill youth into custody at 3:15 p. m. Arraigned before Gardiner Justice Samuel Stokes, Montera pleaded guilty to loitering and was sentenced to jail.

Shoot Down

could use the truce to bring up reinforcements and supplies for the second stage.

The Marines did the kicking off in the battle Thursday, which began when a company of Leathernecks on a sweeping mission ran into about 50 North Vietnamese a mile and a half below the DMZ near the Marine stronghold at Con Thien.

During a withering exchange of small arms and automatic weapons fire, a second Marine company which had been in a blocking position maneuvered to reinforce the embattled company, then both companies came under artillery fire, apparently from guns hidden in caves and pits inside the DMZ.

American artillery and helicopter gunships were supporting the Marines, but the company that made the first contact had closed with the enemy and this prevented close-in artillery and helicopter support for a time.

As the battle developed, reinforcements swelled the North Vietnamese force to perhaps 200 men with bazooka-type rockets and mortars.

Pitted against them were perhaps twice as many Marines.

While the two Marine companies pressed their attack, a platoon from a third company took up a blocking position to the east. The ground fighting then spread over a wider area, and the American artillery and gunships pounded the hemmed-in Communist troops with devastating results.

Elsewhere in South Vietnam, Viet Cong terrorists were on the prowl.

U.S. officials said a mine killed 18 persons and wounded 38 in a crowded market place near Phu Vinh, in the Mekong Delta 60 miles south of Saigon. At the other end of the country, a sniper killed a hamlet chief as he walked along a road near the U.S. Marine post at Cam Lo.

In Da Nang, a 12-year-old boy demolished the police chief's unoccupied jeep with a grenade, but half an hour later police found the child in a nearby alley, wounded by fragments from the grenade.

"Eskimo" is a misnomer, the National Geographic says. Though the northlanders prefer cooked meat, they bear an Indian name meaning "eater of raw flesh."

NEW YORK (AP) — Gains continued to outnumber losses in the stock market early Friday and blue chips edged higher on balance. Trading was fairly active.

The Dow Jones industrial average gained 1.91 at 884.71.

The margin of plus over minus signs was narrow and the market was moving cautiously following a decision to shorten the hours of the trading for an indefinite period starting Monday.

Will Mail Report To Ulster Farmers

A report of payments made to area farmers under the U. S. Agricultural Conservation Program, feed grain, wheat and other subsidies, will be mailed during January, Joseph Sauer, chairman of the Ulster County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee said today.

This report is expected to be helpful in preparing individual income tax returns, Sauer stated. However, he said this would be the first such mailing in the history of the ASCS and could produce problems. Sauer noted that farmers should check the reports against farm records for accuracy.

Birthday Greetings To Desi

BY BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Fifteen years ago today, television's most famous baby was born. His name: Desiderio Arnaz IV.

Today the son of Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz is a strapping teenager who looms taller than his father and — according to his proud pa — can beat a better bongo.

It was on Jan. 19, 1953, that the birth of young Desi coincided with the arrival of a son to the Ricky Ricardos of "I Love Lucy," the nation's most popular television show.

"The story made headlines in every newspaper in the country," recalled Desi Sr. "I never realized how big a story it was until I played golf with President Eisenhower about four years ago down at Palm Desert."

"He asked me how my son was, and I was surprised he knew about Desi," Desi said. "That little so-and-so knocked me off the front pages on the day before my inauguration."

Time passed, and Lucille and Desi broke up as an acting team and pair. He carried on the Desilu empire, then retired and handed the presidency to his ex-wife. Now she has sold out the studios, and he is back in television as producer-director of "The Mothers-in-Law." Both have remarried but they remain friendly.

"Desi is a fine boy; Lucille has done a good job of bringing him up," said the elder Arnaz in his office at the studio he once owned. "And he's doing fine in the music world. I think he earned more money than I did last year."

The lad is part of the rock 'n' roll team of Dino, Desi and Billy, which made a hit with the young crowd three years ago and remains a popular act. The other members are Dino Martin, son of Dean, and Billy Henshe.

"Even though we don't live together," said Arnaz, "I talk to Desi every day on the phone. He asks me for advice on his music career and other things.

"Dean and I and the other father have an agreement about the boys. As long as they keep up their grades and play dates only on their school holidays, they can go on with the act. But I told Desi, 'I don't want a stupid drummer in the family.' He knows that if his average falls below 85 per cent, he'll have to quit the act."

The Desis, Sr. and Jr., made their first appearance together last Sunday night on "The Mothers-in-Law" and will conclude the two-part show this Sunday. Tonight they will celebrate the boy's birthday on the Joey Bishop show.

First Federal Reelects

Gross income of First Federal Savings and Loan Association for 1967 hit an all-time high of $1,700,000 and dividends paid to savers reached a new high of $1,235,000, Dewese W. DeWitt, president, reported Wednesday night at the annual membership meeting.

DeWitt said that after paying expenses First Federal was able to add $105,000 to surplus and reserve, 150 per cent of the statutory amount required. "In 1967 we thought it more important to increase our liquidity position rather than to increase our mortgage portfolio to a large extent," the president said. That was possible without sacrificing earnings due to the high yield on government securities, he noted.

Although 1967 had been a difficult year for Savings and Loan operations and First Federal is paying the highest dividend permitted in the state, its growth in savings was $1,850,000. DeWitt reported. That reflected in the mortgage growth which shows 238 loans closed for $3,194,000. New savings with 900 new accounts opened totaled $2,620,000 of initial deposits.

First Federal's administration staff is the same with DeWitt president; Alexander J. McKittick, executive vice-president; William F. Paulus, assistant vice-president and mortgage officer; William D. Costello, auditor; Jane K. Murphy, assistant secretary and manager of Hyde Park office of First Federal, Virginia Cave, with FFS&L 20 years, was made manager of the Central Broadway office, succeeding Sam D. Bradley, now in Florida. Rosalind B. Wilber resigned in 1967 and June Munson is in charge of loan processing.

DeWitt noted that Julia Palmer was appointed head teller last year to fill a position vacant for years. Katherine Sprenger was named personal secretary to the president in 1967. Other recent additions to the staff were Betty Murphy and Elaine Francello, tellers, and Lorraine Shultis, secretary to the mortgage department.

Other staff members are: Margaret G. Matteson, public relations; Helen D. Schoonmaker, tax-insurance clerk; Barbara Brennan, bookkeeper; Sandra Newkirk and Barbara Byrne, Main office tellers; Marja Hart, Central Broadway office teller; Grace Capasso and Geraldine Penovi, Hyde Park office.

DeWitt paid tribute to the late Olin Kittle, part-time messenger and school savings collector, who was succeeded by Charles Osburg.

DeWitt said the Association will continue its conservative management which has been the policy of the Board for the last 20 years.

George Svirsky and Joseph J. Kelly were reelected directors for three-year terms last night. Directors continuing in office are John B. Sterley, Harry Halverson, George C. Swart, Wilmer S. Nickerson, Clair S. Sheaffer, Robert A. MacKinnon and George Tamke.

After the members meeting, the Board of Directors held an organizational meeting and elected the following: Sterley, chairman of the Board and counsel; Halverson, vice-chairman of the Board; Swart, second vice-chairman; MacKinnon, secretary and associate counsel; DeWitt, president; McKittick and mortgage officer; Costello, auditor; Jane K. Murphy, assistant vice-president; Paulus, assistant vice-president; executive vice-president; assistant secretary and manager of Hyde Park office, and Virginia Cave, manager of Central Broadway office.

Birthday Greetings To Desi

BY BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Fifteen years ago today, television's most famous baby was born. His name: Desiderio Arnaz IV.

Today the son of Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz is a strapping teen-ager who looms taller than his father and — according to his proud pa — can beat a better bongo.

It was on Jan. 19, 1953, that the birth of young Desi coincided with the arrival of a son to the Ricky Ricardos of "I Love Lucy," the nation's most popular television show.

"The story made headlines in every newspaper in the country," recalled Desi Sr. "I never realized how big a story it was until I played golf with President Eisenhower about four years ago down at Palm Desert. He asked me how my son was, and I was surprised he knew about Desi. 'Do I?' said Ike. 'That little so-and-so knocked me off the front pages on the day before my inauguration.'"

Time passed, and Lucille and Desi broke up as an acting team and pair. He carried on the Desilu empire, then retired and handed the presidency to his ex-wife. Now she has sold out the studios, and he is back in television as producer-director of "The Mothers-in-Law." Both have remarried but they remain friendly.

"Desi is a fine boy; Lucille has done a good job of bringing him up," said the elder Arnaz in his office at the studio he once owned. "And he's doing fine in the music world. I think he earned more money than I did last year."

The lad is part of the rock 'n' roll team of Dino, Desi and Billy, which made a hit with the young crowd three years ago and remains a popular act. The other members are Dino Martin, son of Dean, and Billy Henshe.

"Even though we don't live together," said Arnaz, "I talk to Desi every day on the phone. He asks me for advice on his music career and other things.

"Dean and I and the other father have an agreement about the boys. As long as they keep up their grades and play dates only on their school holidays, they can go on with the act. But I told Desi, 'I don't want a stupid drummer in the family.' He knows that if his average falls below 85 per cent, he'll have to quit the act."

The Desis, Sr. and Jr., made their first appearance together last Sunday night on "The Mothers-in-Law" and will conclude the two-part show this Sunday. Tonight they will celebrate the boy's birthday on the Joey Bishop show.

First Federal Reelects

Gross income of First Federal Savings and Loan Association for 1967 hit an all-time high of $1,700,000 and dividends paid to savers reached a new high of $1,235,000, Dewese W. DeWitt, president, reported Wednesday night at the annual membership meeting.

DeWitt said that after paying expenses First Federal was able to add $105,000 to surplus and reserve, 150 per cent of the statutory amount required. "In 1967 we thought it more important to increase our liquidity position rather than to increase our mortgage portfolio to a large extent," the president said. That was possible without sacrificing earnings due to the high yield on government securities, he noted.

Although 1967 had been a difficult year for Savings and Loan operations and First Federal is paying the highest dividend permitted in the state, its growth in savings was $1,850,000, DeWitt reported. That reflected in the mortgage growth which shows 238 loans closed for $3,194,000. New savings with 900 new accounts opened totaled $2,620,000 of initial deposits.

First Federal's administration staff is the same with DeWitt president; Alexander J. McKittrick, executive vice-president; William F. Paulus, assistant vice-president and mortgage officer; William D. Costello, auditor; Jane K. Murphy, assistant secretary and manager of Hyde Park office of First Federal. Virginia Cave, with FFS&L 20 years, was made manager of the Central Broadway office, succeeding Sam D. Bradley, now in Florida. Rosalind B. Wilber resigned in 1967 and June Munson is in charge of loan processing.

DeWitt noted that Julia Palmer was appointed head teller last year to fill a position vacant for years. Katherine Sprenger was named personal secretary to the president in 1967. Other recent additions to the staff were Betty Murphy and Elaine Francello, tellers, and Lorraine Shultis, secretary to the mortgage department.

Other staff members are: Margaret G. Matteson, public relations; Helen D. Schoonmaker, tax-insurance clerk; Barbara Brennan, bookkeeper; Sandra Newkirk and Barbara Byrne, Main office tellers; Marja Hart, Central Broadway office teller; Grace Capasso and Geraldine Penovi, Hyde Park office.

DeWitt paid tribute to the late Olin Kittle, part-time messenger and school savings collector, who was succeeded by Charles Osburg.

DeWitt said the Association will continue its conservative management which has been the policy of the Board for the last 20 years.

George Svirsky and Joseph J. Kelly were reelected directors for three-year terms last night. Directors continuing in office are John B. Sterley, Harry Halverson, George C. Swart, Wilmer S. Nickerson, Clair S. Sheaffer, Robert A. MacKinnon and George Tamke.

After the members meeting, the Board of Directors held an

Cortland Here Saturday

Scoring Punch Eludes SU Basketball Hawks

What Coach Doug Sheppard of the State University College Hawks at New Paltz is thinking about Saturday night's home game with Cortland State must be pretty obvious.

He has to get his 2.4, low scoring Hawks moving, if the remainder of the 1967-68 season is not to be a complete debacle. And he aims to do just that.

The Hawks have dipped below the 70-point mark in four of their six outings. The last three times out the team scored 65, 65, 60 for a 63-point average.

"We have to get our offense moving and hope to start against Cortland," said Sheppard. "We need a win badly because we can expect only trouble in the next two games on the road—at Quinnipiac and Danbury."

Win Over Alfred

Cortland, 4 and 8 for the season, is coming off a 77-71 overtime victory over Alfred and may prove tougher than its record might indicate. But a check of the Red Dragon state reveals they are as impotent as the Hawks in the scoring department.

The top scorer and rebounder is Robert Christ, a 6-3 1/2 Seneca Falls junior, is runnerup with 113 rebounds and 55 points.

The Dragons, who were 7-13 last year, have been handicapped by the failure of John Miller, 6-2 junior guard, to produce at last year's rate of 17.6 per game. He has scored only 58 points to date.

Sands Moving

Ty Sands, the foul shooting wizard, continues to pace the Hawks with a brilliant 27.1 average through the first six games. Runnerup is Ed Schuster Sands, Schuster, Kane, John Flyzik and Peter Cohen, who didn't play against Philadelphia Sheppard expects to start Textile.

The Maple Leafs: Opportunists

The Toronto Maple Leafs, who took advantage of the National Hockey League All-Star team without injured Bobby Orr, wasted little time taking the same advantage of the Boston Bruins.

The Leafs cut down the All-Stars 4-3 Tuesday night after Orr, Boston's super-sophomore defenseman, suffered a muscle bruise early in the game. With Orr still out, Toronto rushed to Boston and stopped the Bruins 4-2, tightening the East Division race.

In the West Division, Philadelphia increased its lead to eight points at St. Paul-Minneapolis by halting the North Stars 4-2 while Los Angeles climbed into second with a 3-2 home ice triumph over Pittsburgh.

Boston managed leads of 1-0 and 2-1 on goals by Ken Hodge and John McKenzie, but appeared disorganized without Orr, who will be out about a week.

Lions, Jaycees Biddy Winners

Lions routed Recreations, 30-14, and Jaycees edged KPA, 19-16, in Biddy Basketball last night.

Duane Carey led Jaycees with 12 and starred on rebounds. Ira Bell hit 8 for KPA; Walt Houghtaling 13 for Lions and Martin Schleede 7 for Recs.

Saturday games at the auditorium: Kiwanis vs. Recs at 12:30 and Jaycees vs. Lions at 1:15 p. m.

Spadoni on Soccer All-America

State University College at New Paltz today claims the third All-America soccer in the school's history.

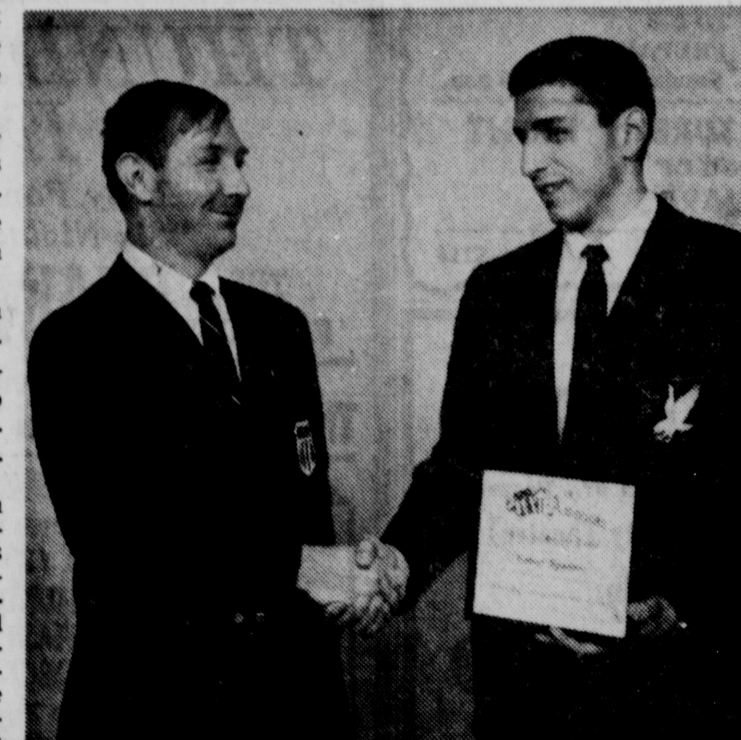

Senior fullback Robert Spadoni of West Chester, Pa., was named to the All-America during the recent meeting of the National Soccer Coaches in New York City.

Spadoni, who was co-captain of the 1967 Hawks squad, follows such illustrious predecessors as Joe Faccioli and Gino Ventriglia as New Paltz All-Americans in the highly specialized sport.

He was a first team selection at left fullback on the 1967 All-New York State team and has frequently been named on all-opponents teams. By unanimous vote, he was presented with a trophy as the outstanding performer and most valuable defensive player in the pre-season four team invitational soccer tournament won by New Paltz at Oneonta.

Other Citations
Additional honors came Spadoni's way when he received college soccer's most coveted honor—the Heinz Ahlmeier Memorial Award—named in honor of Lt. Heinz Ahlmeier, USMC, a former two-sport athlete and soccer teammate, who was killed in action in the Vietnam war.

First winner of the award, Spadoni was cited as "the dedication, perseverance and service beyond self as inspiration to teammates and fellow students" as exemplified by Ahlmeier in his career at New Paltz. Spadoni was also a standout member of the Spadoni came to New Paltz from West Chester, Pa., where he was a 3-year varsity veteran and all-league choice for Southern Chester County under Coach John Serff in 1963.

Coach Bob Durkin hailed Spadoni's selection to the All-America and praised him as the "complete soccer player." Spadoni's academic achievements are equally as impressive as his soccer skills. He is a Secondary Social Studies

Unhappy Times For Earl Monroe

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Earl the Pearl has his problems, but they're nothing compared to those of the Baltimore Bullets.

Earl Monroe spent most of Thursday denying reports that he would refuse to go into the Army if drafted, then got 26 points against St. Louis in a National Basketball Association game at Greensboro, N.C., but the Hawks won 119-116.

Monroe was originally quoted in a Baltimore newspaper about his upcoming draft physical, but later denied he would refuse to serve if drafted.

The Bullets are deep in the Eastern Division cellar with 16 victories and 30 defeats.

The Hawks won on a late basket and two free throws by Len Wilkens after a basket by Don Ohl had tied the score. Zelmo Beaty led St. Louis with 35 points, while Ohl had 32 for the Bullets.

In the only other NBA game, Cincinnati beat San Diego 129-126.

In the American Basketball Association, Dallas beat Kentucky 94-89. Denver crushed New Orleans 126-97 and Minnesota whipped Oakland 123-117.

Oscar Robertson's 36 points led the Royals to victory after the Rockets had closed to within two points with 3:25 left. Don Kojis was high for San Diego with 34 points.

15 in Row For Lobos

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The unbeaten New Mexico Lobos took over the spotlight in college basketball Thursday night even though top-ranked UCLA won its 47th straight game.

The Lobos, sixth-ranked to UCLA in The Associated Press poll, made it 15 in a row by whipping the fifth-ranked Utah Redskins 72-66 before 14,855 at Albuquerque.

With big Lew Alcindor sitting out his second straight game because of his eye injury only 8,311 watched UCLA's easy 93-69 victory over Portland at Pauley Pavilion in Los Angeles. It was UCLA's final game before its heralded meeting with second-ranked Houston in the Astro-dome Saturday night.

With Edgar Lacey and Lucius Allen throwing in 24 and 20 points, respectively, UCLA took an early 20-7 lead and had little trouble with the Pilots.

A fascinating array of February events including ski racing, carnivals, bobsled races and novel snowmobile competitions are in store for New York State winter sports fans during the month of February.

All this will be preceded, of course, by the big weekend at Rosendale on Jan. 27-28, when the Rosendale Trophy Jump and the New York State Combined are scheduled in the first big weekend of the season.

Weather, of course, is the prime factor—the unpredictable element in all the best laid plans of ski operators. And the long range forecast is shaky for Jan. 27-28.

BELLEAYRE SKI CENTER. Hunter Mountain, Bear Mountain, and Mount Beacon Ski Club are involved in the February promotions.

New York State Jaycee ski championships are pegged for Snow Ridge at Turin on Feb. 2-4. Belleayre hosts a giant slalom for juniors on Feb. 3, the same day Mount Beacon sponsors a ski jump at Bear Mountain.

Rip Van Winkle Council's Giant Slalom and Downhill races are on Feb. 17-18 at Belleayre. Later in the month, Hunter hosts the Ricky Cramer Memorial Race on Feb. 23, the day before Art Draper Memorial Giant Slalom at Belleayre. The race honors the late Art Draper, one-time general manager of the ski center.

RECALLING THEIR marvelous experience with IBM's European Ski Charter tour last year, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Dolan of Tilton will be aboard Swissair's Flight 111, destination Zurich, for the second one.

Several Kingston IBMers will make the two-week tour which is sponsored by the IBM Club Vacation Tours for employees and immediate families. Though based at the Endicott plant, the tours are open to all installations and last year's jaunt included people from coast to coast.

This year's itinerary calls for a week at St. Anton in Austria and a week at Davos in Switzerland before return to New York on Feb. 3, provided an avalanche doesn't keep the folks snowbound.

SCHUSS NOTES: Mike Schwaiger, the Hunter Flash, came in second at the Killington (Vt.) PSRA races. . . . Hunter hosts the event on Feb. 29. . . . Radio personality Jack Sterling of WHN and family are expected at Hunter this weekend. . . . Kingston High school's ski varsity has had two ski meets cancelled to date despite huge amounts of snow. Last time at Belleayre because of icy conditions. . . . Skiers will spend an estimated $800 million chasing snow this winter, with some $200 million of that going for equipment and clothing. Based on an estimated 15 per cent yearly growth there will be almost 2 1/2 million skiers in action.

It appears that skiing is here to stay even if some members of the Rondout Valley Board of Education don't believe it.

A new brochure listing all Catskill ski areas in Sullivan county is available free from the Sullivan County Publicity and Development Committee, Monticello, N. Y., 12701.

The booklet also provides advice on skiing, equipment, learning to ski, safety hints for skiers and notes on "apres ski" fun.

WHAT THE AUTOMATIC pin spotter did for bowling, the invention of the snow maker has done for skiing. Last season, several local ski areas reached the magic 100 day mark for the number of days that they were open for skiing.

Today, almost all ski areas are using snow machines and skiing is guaranteed from mid-December until April. The machines have brought skiing right to the heart of Dixie. There is a mile high ski area packed with man-made snow within a few hours' drive of Atlanta, Ga. Actually, the only thing that can mess up the works is a long warm spell or heavy rain.

Sun Valley, Idaho ski area is using a tote board this season which will tell skiers how long the waits are and if lifts are open or closed.

Also adding to the skiers' comfort are handwarmers (96 degrees) where skiers will line up three on a side in between runs.

Have you ever tried skiing? It's fun, you know. Only takes a little courage and a little snow.

Cortland Here Saturday

Scoring Punch Eludes SU Basketball Hawks

What Coach Doug Sheppard of the State University College Hawks at New Paltz is thinking about Saturday night's home game with Cortland State must be pretty obvious.

He has to get his 2.4, low scoring Hawks moving, if the remainder of the 1967-68 season is not to be a complete debacle. And he aims to do just that.

The Hawks have dipped below the 70-point mark in four of their six outings. The last three times out the team scored 65, 65, 60 for a 63-point average.

"We have to get our offense moving and hope to start against Cortland," said Sheppard. "We need a win badly because we can expect only trouble in the next two games on the road—at Quinnipiac and Danbury."

Win Over Alfred

Cortland, 4 and 8 for the season, is coming off a 77-71 overtime victory over Alfred and may prove tougher than its record might indicate. But a check of the Red Dragon state reveals they are as impotent as the Hawks in the scoring department.

The top scorer and rebounder is Robert Christ, a 6-3 1/2 Seneca Falls junior, in runnerup with 113 rebounds and 55 points.

The Dragons, who were 7-13 last year, have been handicapped by the failure of John Miller, 6-2 junior guard, to produce at last year's rate of 17.6 per game. He has scored only 58 points to date.

Sands Moving

Ty Sands, the foul shooting wizard, continues to pace the Hawks with a brilliant 27.1 average through the first six games. Runnerup is Ed Schuster Sands, Schuster, Kane, John with 15.0 and Pete Kane third Flyzik and Peter Cohen, who with 11.4 average. didn't play against Philadelphia Sheppard expects to start Textile.

The Maple Leafs: Lions, Jaycees Biddy Winners

The Toronto Maple Leafs, who took advantage of the National Hockey League All-Star team without injured Bobby Orr, wasted little time taking the same advantage of the Boston Bruins.

The Leafs cut down the All-Stars 4-3 Tuesday night after Orr, Boston's super-sophomore defenseman, suffered a muscle bruise early in the game. With Orr still out, Toronto rushed to Boston and stopped the Bruins 4-2, tightening the East Division race.

In the West Division, Philadelphia increased its lead to eight points at St. Paul-Minneapolis by halting the North Stars 4-2 while Los Angeles climbed into second with a 3-2 home ice triumph over Pittsburgh.

Boston managed leads of 1-0 and 2-1 on goals by Ken Hodge and John McKenzie, but appeared disorganized without Orr, who will be out about a week.

DOUBTFUL STARTER: UCLA basketball superstar Lew Alcindor, wearing patch over his left eye, makes a practice throw after being released from the Jules Stein Eye Clinic, where he had been confined since his eye injury last weekend in a game against California. Alcindor is a doubtful starter against Houston in college basketball's version of the Super Bowl Saturday at Houston. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

In Super Bowl Will Alcindor Play? Only Doctors Know

HOUSTON (AP)—Lew Alcindor remained the tallest question mark in America today as UCLA and Houston finished preparations for their showdown in the Astrodome Saturday night.

Alcindor, the 7-foot-1 rallying point of the awesome Bruins, sat it out Thursday night, a patch covering his injured left eye, as his UCLA teammates rolled over Portland 93-69 in Los Angeles.

It was the 47th straight triumph for Wooden's Wonders, labelled the finest college team ever put together but facing their sternest challenge yet in the powerful Houston Cougars.

"Physically, Houston is probably the strongest team we'll meet," said UCLA Coach John Wooden, who still doesn't know whether Alcindor will be able to play.

"It's all up to the doctors," Wooden said. "He'll have another examination today in Houston. If he's not ready, he won't play. I don't think the doctor will let him unless he can remove the eye patch 24 hours prior to the game."

"I want him to be in there," Houston Coach Guy Lewis said. "If he's not there, the game won't be as meaningful."

With or without big Lew, the game is a sellout, with a record crowd of 55,000 assured for the clash of the nation's top two college basketball teams.

It's also scheduled for national television coverage on the TV Sports Network. The game starts at 9 p.m. EST.

Alcindor, Player of the Year last season as a sophomore, can't be at peak condition. The only practice he's had since injuring the eye a week ago is a couple of laps around the court and a few half-hearted shots at the basket.

He missed both of UCLA's last two games but told campus friends Thursday that the eye felt better and he hoped to play Saturday.

Unhappy Times For Earl Monroe

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Earl the Pearl has his problems, but they're nothing compared to those of the Baltimore Bullets.

Earl Monroe spent most of Thursday denying reports that he would refuse to go into the Army if drafted, then got 26 points against St. Louis in a National Basketball Association game at Greensboro, N.C., but the Hawks won 119-116.

Monroe was originally quoted in a Baltimore newspaper about his upcoming draft physical, but later denied he would refuse to serve if drafted.

The Bullets are deep in the Eastern Division cellar with 16 victories and 30 defeats.

The Hawks won on a late basket and two free throws by Len Wilkens after a basket by Don Ohl had tied the score. Zemo Beatty led St. Louis with 35 points, while Ohl had 32 for the Bullets.

In the only other NBA game, Cincinnati beat San Diego 129-126.

In the American Basketball Association, Dallas beat Kentucky 94-89. Denver crushed New Orleans 126-97 and Minnesota whipped Oakland 123-117.

Oscar Robertson's 36 points led the Royals to victory after the Rockets had closed to within two points with 3:25 left. Don Kojis was high for San Diego with 34 points.

15 in Row For Lobos

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer

The unbeaten New Mexico Lobos took over the spotlight in college basketball Thursday night even though top-ranked UCLA won its 47th straight game.

The Lobos, sixth-ranked to UCLA in The Associated Press poll, made it 15 in a row by whipping the fifth-ranked Utah Redskins 72-66 before 14,855 at Albuquerque.

With big Lew Alcindor sitting out his second straight game because of his eye injury only 8,311 watched UCLA's easy 93-69 victory over Portland at Pauley Pavilion in Los Angeles. It was UCLA's final game before its heralded meeting with second-ranked Houston in the Astrodome Saturday night.

DEAR ABBY: I am planning to become engaged in the near future, and my boy friend and I are having a big difference of opinion on something I want you to settle.
I would like to have an engagement ring made with yellow gold. My boy friend prefers white. He says that since he is paying for it, he should pick it out and I should take what I get and like it. I told him that since I'm going to be wearing the ring, I should be the one to pick it out.

I also told him that most girls pick out their own engagement rings after the boy tells the girl how much he wants to spend. He doesn't agree with me and wants me to show him where it says it is all right for the girl to pick out her own ring.

One of her colleagues wrote to say that he had collected the money for the "retirement gift" and dinner and was now red-faced because the teacher had not retired after all. It was even suggested that she return the gift.

Why was this "retiring" teacher honored in the first place? Because she had given long years of faithful service and had earned the right to retire, right? This being the case, perhaps she ought to have been welcomed back with outstretched arms.

Opening lead—♣ A

Some years ago we used to write about a character named Larceny Lou. Lou was a good player but he also was tricky. He bid and played in an effort to confuse his opponents and frequently succeeded.

Today's South might well be a prototype of this character. He had no reason to go beyond game after his partner signed off at four hearts. In fact he had very little reason to make any slam try at all, but he had such a fine opportunity to make two fake cue bids that he could not resist the temptation.

West fell for the deception hook, line and sinker and opened his ace of clubs. This was just what South wanted but he still wasn't home with his contract. He needed a club continuation and the right club continuation. East dropped the six and South falsecarded with the seven.

West looked for the deuce but it wasn't in sight. He assumed that his partner had the card and was signaling with the six so West continued with the three of clubs.

This was all South needed. Trumps were drawn with three leads. Two of dummy's spades went on the king and queen of clubs and South had stolen his slam.

Stolen may be too strong a word. West had given it to him. We can't really criticize West for his club lead. Ace leads against slams are likely to be good ones, but we do think his second play was just ridiculous. He had heard the bidding and seen the dummy, and it should have been obvious to him that South had been faking his diamond and spade bids in order to get a club lead. He had received that lead, but there was no need for a continuation. Finally, if West had continued he would still have been all right if he had played the jack instead of the three.

Opening lead—♣ A

Some years ago we used to write about a character named Larceny Lou. Lou was a good player but he also was tricky. He bid and played in an effort to confuse his opponents and frequently succeeded.

Today's South might well be a prototype of this character. He had no reason to go beyond game after his partner signed off at four hearts. In fact he had very little reason to make any slam try at all, but he had such a fine opportunity to make two fake cue bids that he could not resist the temptation.

West fell for the deception hook, line and sinker and opened his ace of clubs. This was just what South wanted but he still wasn't home with his contract. He needed a club continuation and the right club continuation. East dropped the six and South falsecarded with the seven.

West looked for the deuce but it wasn't in sight. He assumed that his partner had the card and was signaling with the six so West continued with the three of clubs.

This was all South needed. Dummy's 10 won the trick. Trumps were drawn with three leads. Two of dummy's spades on the king and queen of clubs and South had stolen his slam.

Stolen may be too strong a word. West had given it to him. We can't really criticize West for his club lead. Ace leads against slams are likely to be good ones, but we do think his second play was just ridiculous.

He had heard the bidding and seen the dummy, and it should have been obvious to him that South had been faking his diamond and spade bids in order to get a club lead. He had received that lead, but there was no need for a continuation. Finally, if West had continued he would still have been all right if he had played the jack instead of the three. ## Bob Hope: A Moving Program

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The form of Bob Hope's annual television report of his Christmas entertainment tour varies little from year to year. And nobody, particularly the home viewers, wants it to change.

In the 90 minutes of Thursday evening's NBC special, Hope was, of course, in the middle of things. As usual he swung his golf club, wore military hats at cocky angles and always had a wisecrack on his lips.

The Pretty Ones
Then there were the pretty girls who are much in evidence each year in the Hope troupe. This time it was film star Raquel Welch, dancer Elaine Dunn, Madeline Hartog-Bel of Peru, who is Miss World, and singer Barbara McNair. They were rewarded by the wolf whistles as they came on stage in brief costumes or pretty dresses. Occasionally they varied their acts by cavorting with some GIs from the shows.

Hope and company, traveling by plane and helicopter, presented 22 shows in 15 days, a couple of them on the decks of carriers and more than one within gunshot of the enemy. The program was a collection of bits and pieces from the shows.

Although the visiting performers were officially the stars of the Hope television program, the real stars were, as always, the thousands and thousands of soldiers, sailors and marines in his audiences.

As the years go by, camera crews on the Hope junkets get better. This year some of the photography was stunning. And while the comedian was on some improvised stage making local, or topical, jokes or kidding the brass, the camera was often wandering over the faces in the audience, pausing here for a moment as a man broke into hearty laughter.

Sometimes it looked as if Hope was playing to an army—even the hills around a base seemed covered with military men, and they clustered at odd points on the ships like swarms of bees. They enjoyed Hope's cracks about conditions at home, but from the sound of laughter they appreciated even more his jokes about local conditions and customs.

A Serious Finale
There was innovation this season. The windup of the program showed members of the troupe visiting informally the wounded in hospitals. And Hope concluded the show with a serious expression of hope for peace.

It was, as usual, a moving program.

After all these years as a regular on the daytime game show, "To Tell the Truth," Tom Poston is now off the panel. His place will be filled by various performers.

Mark Goodson, producer of the show, said that the program had undergone a radical change of format, had introduced some new faces, and had improved

Bob Hope: A Moving Program

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The form of Bob Hope's annual television tour varies little from year to year. And nobody, particularly the home viewers, wants it to change.

In the 90 minutes of Thursday evening's NBC special, Hope was, of course, in the middle of things. As usual he swung his golf club, wore military hats at cocky angles and always had a wisecrack on his lips.

The Pretty Ones

Then there were the pretty girls who are much in evidence each year in the Hope troupe.

This time it was film star Raquel

Welch, dancer Elaine Dunn, Madeline Hartog-Bel of

Peru, who is Miss World, and singer Barbara McNair. They were rewarded by the wolf

whistles as they came on stage in brief costumes or pretty dresses. Occasionally they varied their acts by cavorting with some GIs from the audience.

Hope and company, traveling by plane and helicopter, presented 22 shows in 15 days, a couple of them on the decks of carriers and more than one within gunshot of the enemy.

The program was a collection of bits and pieces from the shows.

Although the visiting performers were officially the stars of the Hope television program, the real stars were, as always,

the thousands and thousands of soldiers, sailors and marines in his audiences.

As the years go by, camera crews on the Hope junkets get better. This year some of the photography was stunning. And while the comedian was on some improvised stage making local, or topical, jokes or kidding the brass, the camera was often wandering over the faces in the audience, pausing here for a moment as a man broke into hearty laughter.

Sometimes it looked as if

Hope was playing to an army—

even the hills around a base seemed covered with military men, and they clustered at odd points on the ships like swarms of bees. They enjoyed Hope's cracks about conditions at home, but from the sound of laughter, they appreciated even more his jokes about local conditions and customs.

A Serious Finale

There was innovation this season. The windup of the program showed members of the troupe visiting informally the wounded in hospitals. And Hope concluded the show with a serious expression of hope for peace.

It was, as usual, a moving program.

After all these years as a regular on the daytime game show,

"To Tell the Truth," Tom Poston is now off the panel. His place will be filled by various performers.

Mark Goodson, producer of the show, said that the program had undergone a radical change of format, had introduced some new faces, and had improved its ratings which had been dropping.

Allen Ludden, formerly of Goodson's "Password," which

TRAIN DERAILMENT—Eighteen cars in an 83-car New Haven Railroad freight train jumped the tracks Wednesday near the Brewster railroad station. Officials said no injuries were reported and the train was not transporting any explosive material. A railroad spokesman said three locomotives were off the track. The freight was westbound from New Haven, Conn. to Maybrook. Cause of the derailment was not determined but an investigation was ordered. (Freeman photo by Haines).

No Sasebo Incidents

The 'Big E' Sailors Go Ashore

SASEBO, Japan (AP)—Sailors against the ship's visit had left town. Because of the violence, some of it only a few hours earlier, the first 325 sailors ashore from the 75,000-ton carrier were kept inside the U.S. Navy base for two hours. Then the restriction was lifted and the sailors relaxed in what is described as "the best liberty port in Japan." They were followed by some 3,000 more sailors from the carrier and its escorting frigates, the nuclear-powered Truxtun.

and the conventionally powered Halsey. In the bar and cabaret district, about 300 Socialists and Communists staged a sitdown in a street. Some sailors turned away and walked in the opposite direction. No other incidents were reported. As the radical leftist student demonstrators left town earlier, they vowed to return in strength Sunday for another violent protest against the first visit to Japan of a nuclear-powered surface ship. Their numbers had diminished from 800 to 400 during three days of battles with police in front of the naval base. About 400 rock-throwing students tried to push past the police barricades outside the base's main entrance this morning as the big carrier was anchoring offshore, out of their sight. About 800 charged the police Wednesday and about 700 Thursday. In each case the police, making their stand at a bridge leading to the base's main gate, repelled the students with tear gas, clubs and blasts from water cannons. After the clash today, about 200 students snake-danced to a housing compound for U.S. Navy families but left after about 10 minutes of throwing rocks at Japanese police who set up barbed wire barricades. American children played unconcerned inside the compound, about 300 yards away. Police said 10 policemen, four students and two Japanese reporters were injured today, all at the bridge, and eight persons were arrested. The youths who rioted were described as the hysterical fringe of the student movement. Thousands of labor unionists and Communist and Socialist politicians have demonstrated peacefully, most of Sasebo's 250,000 residents are indifferent, and merchants are trying to give a welcome to the American sailors and their business. Although the Enterprise left Pearl Harbor only 10 days ago, the Defense Department in Washington said the ship's call at Sasebo was intended only to provide leave for the crew and a chance to pick up supplies. But American and Japanese diplomats in Washington said there was more to the visit than that.

Find Missing 6-Year-Old Port Ewen Girl

Port Ewen was caught in a flurry of activity Thursday afternoon for about a half hour, until a six-year-old girl reported missing, was found by sheriff's deputies. Brenda Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin H. Johnson, of New Salem Road, Port Ewen, was the object of the search which also alerted volunteer firemen and state police. The four-foot tall blonde was last seen by her cousin who said Brenda was on the school bus, but did not get off at her usual stop. After a check with Port Ewen School authorities and the school bus driver, Deputies Marshall Canosa and James Milesky found the girl near Port Ewen Methodist Church at 4:50 p. m.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Labor Department has approved a grant of $131,970 to help Community Action Committee Inc. of Newburgh, N.Y., provide job training for 180 youths, Rep. John G. Dow, D-N.Y., said Thursday.

Feel Big Red Buildup May Be 'Peace' Answer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say a massive buildup of Communist forces along South Vietnam's northern frontier may be evidence North Vietnam has no intention of scaling down the war in the near future. U.S. military authorities in Saigon report an estimated 35,000 Communist regulars are massed in the buffer zone separating the two Vietnams, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Vietnam, has predicted. "A resurgence of enemy initiatives" around the end of the month.

Vietnam, Riots, Crime on List

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress members say Vietnam ranks as the No. 1 issue with voters they've talked to back home—but add the war was nearly overshadowed by rising anger over riots and crime. "People want crime in the streets stopped and they don't mean maybe" said Rep. Bob Sikes, D-Fla. He and numerous other representatives and senators were responding to an Associated Press survey on what voter attitudes they found at home during their recent month-long recess.

Johnson's principal price for ending the bombing, officials said, is a firm indication from Hanoi, either by action in the war or by assurance through diplomatic channels, that a bombing halt would bring immediate Communist de-escalation. Johnson has long since ruled out what officials describe as a "one-sided talk and fight" procedure—a situation in which the U.S. would stop the bombing and join in peace talks while the war otherwise continued unabated.

The diplomatic front now finds Washington and Hanoi apparently engaged in long-distance exploratory negotiations through intermediaries, each evidently trying to find out if there is any concession to be won in the other's position.

The United States has reportedly received word through these channels that North Vietnam would be prepared to start talks in a few days after the bombing was halted. One of President Johnson's conditions for stopping the bombing in order to get discussions going is that the talks should begin promptly.

Another condition, as Johnson put it in his State of the Union message Wednesday night, is that the talks should give reasonable hopes of being productive. To satisfy themselves on this point, U.S. officials are asking Hanoi what issues would be on the agenda.

But the crucial point from the American point of view is military de-escalation by the Communists in response to ending the bombing. And on this point Johnson and his advisors evidently want answers to two and the conventionally powered face ship. Their numbers had diminished from 800 to 400 during three days of battles with police in front of the naval base.

About 400 rock-throwing students tried to push past the police barricades outside the base's main entrance this morning as the big carrier was anchoring offshore, out of their sight.

About 800 charged the police Wednesday and about 700 Thursday. In each case the police, making their stand at a bridge leading to the base's main gate, repelled the students with tear gas, clubs and blasts from water cannons.

Find Missing 6-Year-Old Port Ewen Girl

Port Ewen was caught in a flurry of activity Thursday afternoon for about a half hour, until a six-year-old girl reported missing, was found by sheriff's deputies.

Brenda Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin H. Johnson, of New Salem Road, Port Ewen, was the object of the search which also alerted volunteer firemen and state police.

The four-foot tall blonde was last seen by her cousin who said Brenda was on the school bus, but did not get off at her usual stop.

After a check with Port Ewen School authorities and the school bus driver, Deputies Marshall Canosa and James Milesky found the girl near Port Ewen Methodist Church at 4:50 p. m.

Feel Big Red Buildup May Be 'Peace' Answer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say a massive buildup of Communist forces along South Vietnam's northern frontier may be evidence North Vietnam has no intention of scaling down the war in the near future.

U.S. military authorities in Saigon report an estimated 35,000 Communist regulars are massed in the buffer zone separating the two Vietnams, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Vietnam, has predicted "a resurgence of enemy initiatives" around the end of the month.

U.S. policy-makers said Thursday that North Vietnam's military actions are considered by President Johnson and his advisers an important indication of North Vietnam's real intentions in its present peace offensive.

North Vietnam's stated price for peace talks is an unconditional end to U.S. bombing.

Vietnam, Riots, Crime on List

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress members say Vietnam ranks as the No. 1 issue with voters they've talked to back home—but add the war was nearly overshadowed by rising anger over riots and crime.

"People want crime in the streets stopped and they don't mean maybe" said Rep. Bob Sikes, D-Fla.

He and numerous other representatives and senators were responding to an Associated Press survey on what voter attitudes they found at home during their recent month-long recess.

Rep. Tom Railsback, R-Ill., reported when he mentioned crime in a speech at Galesburg, Ill., a waitress took the floor away from him and angrily described how she'd been struck and robbed in what she thought was her safe neighborhood.

The anger over crime was listed by nearly all congressmen surveyed. And it was reflected when President Johnson's State of the Union appeal Wednesday night for stiffer anticrime measures brought more cheers from congressmen than any other proposal.

Rep. Graham Purcell, D-Tex., said he returned from home convinced the people want enactment of such legislation to be high on Congress' priority list.

"Vietnam is a depressing pall that hangs over everything," said Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okl. "But crime and the riots are really more an issue than Vietnam."

As for the war, most congressmen said they found frustration and disillusionment at home—but a determination not to end the conflict without an honorable settlement.

"I ran into fewer 'invade North Vietnam and bomb them back into the stone age' people than those for negotiation," said Rep. Andrew Jacobs Jr., D-Ind. "But the largest number are unhappy the war exists, would like to get it over with, but have few suggestions on how to do it."

Rep. W. R. Poage, D-Tex., disagreed. "The majority of our people would like to move faster and get it over with," Poage said. "The doves are in the minority."

The congressmen also found strong feelings against Johnson's proposed tax increase, government spending and the activities of militant Negro leader Stokely Carmichael and French President Charles de Gaulle.

Said Rep. Jack Edwards, R-Ala.: "People can't understand why we continue to give De Gaulle gold for dollars and don't insist that France start paying its $6 billion World War I debt."

Strong opposition to the tax increase was reported throughout the country—but many Democrats and a few Republicans said they believed people would go along with an increase that had strings attached.

"They want the war over with and they'd be willing to pay for it," said Rep. Kenneth J. Gray, D-Ill. "But there would have to be guarantees that when the war's over, the tax comes off."

"I generally found what I call the Great Society blues," said Rep. James C. Cleveland, R-N.H. "This was seen in the unhappiness over the prospect of higher taxes and travel restrictions."

Johnson's principal price for questions: Would North Vietnam be prepared to stop sending reinforcements to Communist forces in the South? Would all attacks from North Vietnamese forces in the buffer zone be stopped?

This issue, judged by the public positions of the two sides, is deadlocked at present because Hanoi spokesmen have said publicly the United States is responsible for aggression against North Vietnam and has no right to deny military response on their part to ending that aggression.

The diplomatic front now finds Washington and Hanoi apparently engaged in long-distance exploratory negotiations through intermediaries, each evidently trying to find out if there is any concession to be won in the other's position.

The United States has reportedly received word through these channels that North Vietnam would be prepared to start talks in a few days after the bombing was halted. One of President Johnson's conditions for stopping the bombing in order to get discussions going is that the talks should begin promptly.

Another condition, as Johnson put it in his State of the Union message Wednesday night, is that the talks should give reasonable hopes of being productive. To satisfy themselves on this point, U.S. officials are asking Hanoi what issues would be on the agenda.

But the crucial point from the American point of view is military de-escalation by the Communists in response to ending the bombing. And on this point Johnson and his advisers evidently want answers to two
